

Police Puzzle Over Fate Of 2 Missing Women

Niles, South Bend Cases Have Similar Patterns

By STEVE McQUOWN
Staff Writer

NILES — Police officers from two agencies are convinced there is a connection between the November, 1973, disappearance of a South Bend woman and the July disappearance of a Niles mother of two.

But a wealth of factors common to both women has produced a deepening mystery that has baffled officers from the South Bend police and the Michigan state police at the Niles post.

State police Det. Sgt. Wayne Long and South Bend police Det. Sgt. Michael Borkowski said during a press conference that they need the help of the public if they are to locate the women or to determine if they have become murder or kidnap victims.

Under investigation is the disappearance on Nov. 6, 1973, of Janice L. Lange, 21, a South Bend woman who dropped from sight, along with her car, after leaving her job at the AVCO company in Elkhart.

Michigan state police are investigating the disappearance of Janis Kay Sanders, 24, 403 Fort street, Niles, who was reported last seen the night of July 21 as she was leaving her job at Pete's Patio, M-51 in Niles.

She is divorced and had custody of her two children, ages four and five, who have since been turned over to their father.

Mrs. Sanders' car has not been recovered.

Some of the common factors they listed: for the two women:

— Both women had similar first names.

— Both had lived with the same man in South Bend, and had left him, before disappearing less than a week later.

— Cars of both are missing and have not been located despite exhaustive police efforts to track them.

— Both women knew each other, were in their early 20's, and had some common friends.

— Neither woman had a police record.

Miss Lange was described as 5 feet 8, weighing about 150 pounds, blue eyes and had shoulder length, medium brown hair.

Her auto was a 1972 Mercury Montego, bright red in color. The 1973 license plate was Indiana 71-J6780.

Mrs. Sanders was described as about 5 feet 4, weighing 115 pounds, with shoulder-length auburn-colored hair.

Her car was a 1974 Matador X with a rust-colored body and black vinyl top. The license plate is Michigan 7T1B-805.

Sgt. Long and Borkowski said people with information about the two women, or their cars, should call the state police post in Niles or the detective bureau of the South Bend city police.

Terrorists Take Over Embassy In Malaysia

U.S., Swedish Envoys Held

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Terrorists seeking freedom for Red Army fanatics jailed in Japan stormed the U.S. embassy in Kuala Lumpur today, seized U.S. consul Robert Stebbins, 45, a Swedish diplomat and other hostages. Japan said it would meet their demands.

The terrorists shot and wounded three security men during the takeover, threatened to blow up the building but let a self-declared deadline pass without incident.

"We have decided to follow what the Kuala Lumpur terrorists are demanding," a spokesman for the office of Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki said in Tokyo. Miki is currently in the United States, preparing for talks with President Ford.

"We made the decision to secure the lives of the hostages, but the final action will be subject to the intentions of the Malaysian government."

The spokesman said preparations were being made for the release of seven prisoners from Japanese jails, as demanded by the terrorists. Meanwhile, Japan Air Lines was preparing a special plane to carry the seven to Kuala Lumpur and pick up the terrorists for a flight to wherever they want to go.

The spokesman said police were conferring with each of the seven to learn whether they really wanted to leave Japan. He said this was because not all seven are members of the Red Army, with which the Kuala Lumpur terrorists are believed to have links. He said two former Red Army members had told police they would not go back to the organization.

The exact number of terrorists and hostages was not immediately known. Diplomats said earlier there were four to six terrorists, and that in addition to the American and the Swede, the hostages included Australians, Malaysians, a Japanese and a Singaporean who had gone to obtain visas at the U.S. Embassy's consular section.

FBI Will Help In Search For Hoffa

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The FBI, which once assigned dozens of agents to put Jimmy Hoffa behind bars, today began to coordinate a team of police agencies working day and night to find the ex-Teamsters president.

Federal sources said they believe Hoffa was kidnapped or killed, the victim of his own campaign to regain union power — a campaign which threatened present both union officials and organized crime.

The FBI entered the case Sunday after FBI director Clarence M. Kelley revealed in a brief statement that extortion demands had been received. Hoffa's family said it has received no ransom demands, nor threats against Hoffa's life. Hoffa has been missing since last Wednesday, and his family believes he was kidnapped.

In its search for information regarding Hoffa's disappearance, the FBI is expected to question several men long familiar to federal crime fighters, including a reputed Mafia figure and a former Teamsters official with whom Hoffa had been feuding.

The Detroit News today said authorities believe Hoffa hoped to use his knowledge of corruption in the Teamsters union in his effort to unseat Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons.

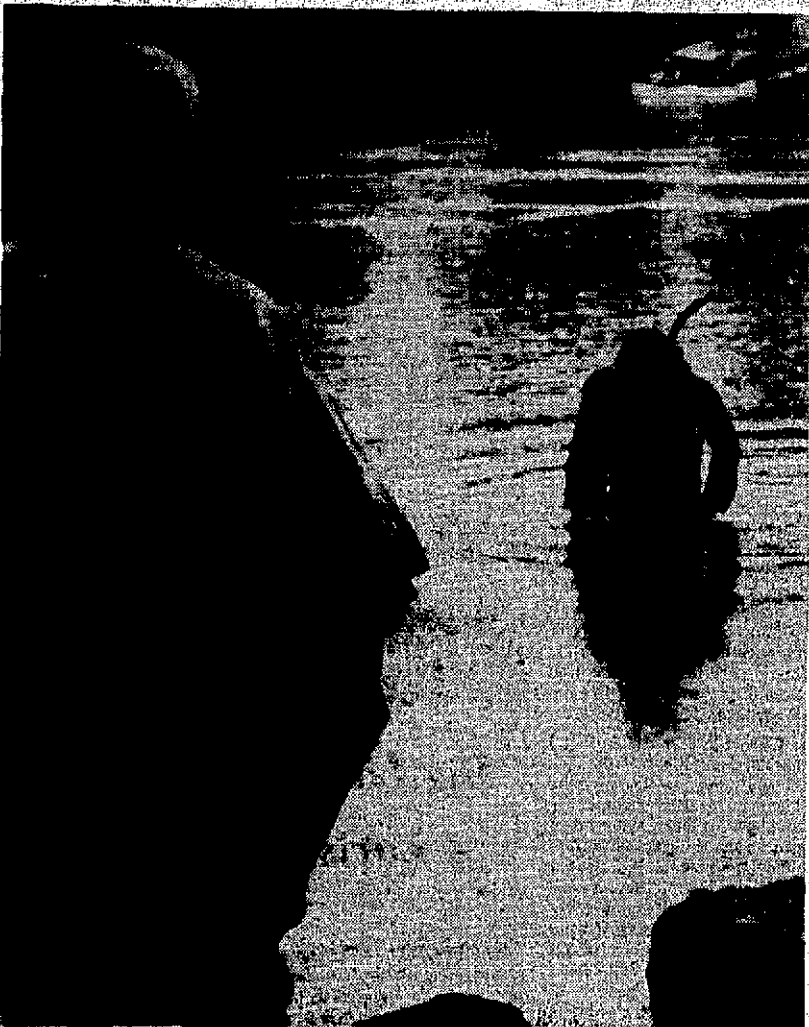

Federal investigators have been probing Teamster pensions funds for years. Authorities say many crime figures have ready access to funds siphoned from the huge pension coffers.

FBI officials acknowledge that about a dozen agents have been working the Hoffa case since he was reported missing last Thursday, even though the Bureau did not take over the probe until Sunday.

Though Kelley said extortion demands forced the FBI into the case, there was no real indication that new threats were taken seriously.

Hoffa's daughter, Barbara Cranshaw, acknowledged a threat to a close family friend, and other sources said a second

DIVER KEEPS LOOKING FOR CANNON: Scuba diver prepares to leave St. Joseph river near Broadway street in Niles Saturday still looking for two old cannons believed to be from Ft. St. Joseph. Unsuccessful eight-hour search was hampered by almost continual rain.

Divers Scour River Bottom At Niles For Two Historic Cannons From Ft. St. Joseph

By JOHN DYE

South Bend Bureau

NILES — Members of a Niles diving club and a South Bend treasure hunting organization were unsuccessful Saturday in a search of the St. Joseph river, here for two cannons they believe came from the old Fort St. Joseph here.

V. R. Hessling of South Bend, a member of the Mid-America Prospectors and Treasure Hunting club and a leader of the search, said that while the two cannons were not found, he would consult both clubs and the city of Niles to possibly stage a second search. The Niles club was the Niles Diving club.

Using metal detecting equipment carried by river waders and also in boats, the searchers found two metal objects submerged about 15 feet below the surface south of the French Paper company dam, but were unable to bring the objects to the surface.

In one case, a club spokesman said a pump for removing silt or sand from around the object would have been too small to do the work quickly. In the other case, a marker placed over the location shifted, meaning the exact location would have to be again pinpointed.

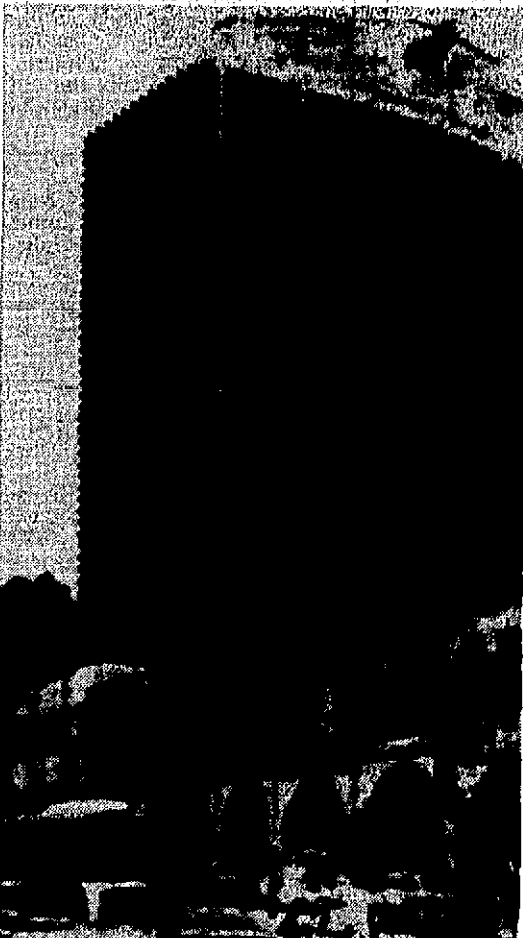

Hessling said he has researched the history of the old fort originally founded in the 1690's by the French. Two cannons from the fort have never been recovered and Hessling said his research indicates the cannon may have been removed from the fort and tossed into the river by any one of several invaders which took over the fort during a 100-year period ending in the 1780's.

Several efforts to find the cannon in the past have failed, Hessling said, but metal detecting equipment used Saturday had never been employed before.

The group also searched an area between the Broadway and Main street bridges.

Under an agreement reached with the recreation board, any items recovered that are of historical interest are to be given to the city, while other items recovered go to the two clubs.

Indiana and Michigan Electric company, assisted in the river search by lowering the river level from its Twin Branch dam near Mishawaka.

Kunstler Jailed By Judge In Little Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The judge in the Jean Little murder case ordered defense attorney William Kunstler out of the courtroom today and directed sheriff's deputies to escort him to the jail on the fifth floor of the Wake County Courthouse.

It was not clear initially what charge if any had been filed against Kunstler.

The order followed a brief exchange between Judge themselves, Hagedorn, and Kunstler after the judge had denied Kunstler's bid to become part of the Little defense team.

After the denial, Kunstler stood up in the public area of the courtroom and declared: "I am the quality of justice in North Carolina has not improved."

Hagedorn replied, "If you make any further comments, you will be sent to the fifth floor."

"Take me up there. What you're doing is outrageous," said Kunstler.

Deputies moved immediately to escort Kunstler to the jail area of the courthouse.

Kunstler, famed for his defense of the Chicago Seven, H. Rap Brown and other radicals, had arrived here Sunday night to join in the defense of Jean Little.

The 31-year-old black woman is charged with first-degree murder in the stabbing death of white father Clarence Allgood, 62. She says she killed him when he tried to rape her. The state contends she killed Allgood to escape.

Miss Little's chief attorney, Jerry Paul, said he contacted Kunstler last week after another member of the defense staff, Morris Doss, was hospitalized.

A prosecution witness said Tuesday that Doss had tried to influence her testimony during a trial recess. Hagedorn summarily ordered Doss out of the courtroom and he was later charged with subornation of perjury.

TV Hard Sell Yields Soft Results

Noting that Jerry Lewis and other entertainment celebrities had enjoyed great success in various charitable fund appeals pitched over national television hookups, the Democratic National Committee tried its hand with the technique for the 1972 Presidential campaign.

It worked surprisingly well.

Allowing for the fact that some donors probably would have contributed anyway, the Committee picked up $4 million dollars which rightfully could be looked upon as money it otherwise would not have received.

The '74 Congressional campaign performed even better. The Committee pulled in $5.4 million. The Watergate miasma blanketing the country must be credited for much of the result.

Last week's telethon fell far behind its $5.3 million goal. Pledges stopped at the $4 million mark. The renegeing rate, based on the first two trials, is 20 per cent. So the Committee anticipates actual payment will be closer to $3.2 million than the $4 million promised.

Many reasons can be conjured up for the disappointing result.

Political enthusiasm always drops away from a campaign year's peak, as all hat passers know only too well.

This is not a particularly propitious time to solicit funds for any purpose, charitable or otherwise. At least many sponsors of good causes are holding off major fund raisings until the economy can breathe more freely.

The summertime slide in television viewing quite likely reduced the audience maximum which the first two telethons enjoyed.

The telethon's repeat performance in show biz razzle dazzle turned off some viewers.

The program came at a time when many of the Presidential hopefuls were drawing from the well or already had done so. George Wallace and Henry (Skip) Jackson, for example, are running hard sell mailing appeals. Wallace, especially, has picked off a sizeable sum already.

Another drawback from the money well is the option for income taxpayers to designate a few dollars credit from their tax to be forwarded to the party organization of their choice.

The foregoing are practical considerations, which if not capable of 100 per cent pinpointing, still can be sustained as reasonably drawn hunches from past experience in all fund raising.

It may also be the telethon ran into an intangible more difficult to define but which should cause both major party leaders to assess.

A few weeks ago Lou Harris, one of the better among the public opinion survey organizations, addressed the U.S. Conference of Mayors on the theme of traditional means to getting elected becoming outdated. Glib promises and appeals to fear, he told the audience, may be falling on deaf ears.

Harris further jolted the assembly by saying his polls indicate that 86 per cent of Americans feel more politicians fear to speak truthfully about the recession, the energy crunch and other worries, and that three-quarters regard what they pay in taxes and what they receive in return as a rip-off.

Since Gallup, Sindlinger and other pollsters report much the same result, it is little wonder many within Harris's speaking range left the room with mental indigestion.

Their uneasiness was enhanced even more when Harris said his survey shows the public wants "quiet voices if they are genuine voices."

Because campaigning at any level usually rests on the something for everybody premise, an overnight reversal to the technique described by Harris seems unlikely.

Wallace is the only major figure in public life to divert from it, and if the opinion polls are to be accorded recognition, his narrow approach makes him a spoiler for others rather than a winner in his own right.

The extent to which the telethon fell short because it ran counter to Harris's contention the public wants the tell like it is message would be difficult to assess.

The suspicion is that may have been quite influential.

This is disturbing to the average politico who might want to gamble with Harris but who hesitates to discard a traditional sales message. He may not believe its value is still what it used to be, but he is familiar with it. The bare truth is upsetting.

Getting The Oil Squeeze

Communist China has known it for a long time. The Red nations of Eastern Europe are now getting the message: With friends like Russia, who needs enemies?

An article in the Aug. 1st issue of Forbes magazine tells how the Soviet Union is putting the price squeeze on its satellites.

"While everybody was looking the other way—that is, at the Arabs," says Forbes, "guess who became the world's largest oil producer last year?"

None other than the Soviet Union, which claims it produced 3.3 billion barrels of oil, thus passing the U.S.' 3.1 billion barrels. With oil prices quadrupled, this gave the Russians a $1.5 billion windfall profit on the 317 million barrels of oil they sold to the West.

Well, maybe no one could blame Russian communists for ripping off excess profits from the capitalist West. But what about their philosophic soul mates, the other communist nations in Europe? Good old Brezhnev & Company wouldn't give them the shaft—or would they?

Yes, says Forbes magazine, Russia passed the price hike along regardless of ideology, giving the Soviets a "huge gain on the oil they sold to their own satellites in Eastern Europe. When it comes to a buck, communist solidarity apparently can go hang, for the Soviets have more than doubled the price at which they sell some 520 million barrels a year to countries like East Germany, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria."

As old Ebenezer Scrooge learned in a horrible night's experience, it doesn't pay to get too greedy. Russia may be courting trouble along its European borders.

"The Soviet Union," Forbes notes, "has reversed the trade deficits it used to run with its own communist bloc . . . Obviously, the Eastern European countries aren't happy about the situation; it is a major setback in their long-term goal of developing economically to equality with Western Europe."

Politics often tend to fashion themselves after the economics of a situation. None of the satellites appears strong enough to buck Russia suddenly. But nobody is willing to be played for a sucker forever.

BASEBALL IS TAKING OVER TV

Editor:

Why has baseball been coming on more often now than the regular shows? It makes me mad. When I want to watch a show, baseball is on. I think that you should write the things that are coming on TV now, not coming on 10 weeks from now.

I think that it is stupid that people never get to watch their shows. Baseball has been taking over every channel on television. It makes me very sick to watch baseball every day. All baseball is a sport. I don't know what is so big about it. Either write things right or don't bother to write them at all.

WONDERS WHY KATYN FOREST OVERLOOKED

Editor:

Would it not also have been an honor for Mr. Ford to lay a wreath in memory of the hundreds of Polish officers who were massacred at Katyn Forest by the Russian army during World War II and later found by the advancing German army?

Their wives and daughters were delivered to the Russian army to be deplored at the beasts' pleasure.

This is a matter of history whether the "controlled news" wants to admit it or not.

I am sure the living relatives of the men and women victims of this dastardly crime feel as I do.

Is Mr. Ford, and his alter-ego Kissinger, in a hurry to get to Finland to "finish" the few non-Red nations left on this globe?

INFORMATION ON MILLBURG WANTED

Editor:

Would you or any of your readers happen to know what was the first plotted village in Berrien county? This village was also the site of the first Post Office (1836) and first public school (1867). If you're thinking it's Benton Harbor, you're off by 25 years. One more hint, it was also the site of the first church.

The answer might startle quite a few people, for the village just happens to be Millburg! This little burg was plotted in the year 1855 by Jehiel Enos and Amos Amaden.

Very few history books even mention the village of Millburg, and when they do they only say a few lines. I would like to ask anyone who has any information about Millburg, if they would kindly write down anything they might know, no matter how small it may seem to them, and mail it to me with their name and address attached. Also, any pictures of Millburg would be of great interest to me if they would care to donate them or even if they would just like me to see them.

I would like to explain that I am not doing this with the idea of publishing a book of anything like that. My desire is to gather as much Millburg history as I can. This information would then be given to the Benton Harbor public library, where anyone interested could easily find Millburg's history. I hope there are enough people who'll take a few minutes, write down what they know or have been told, and mail it to me so all of us can get a true picture of what this first village was like. Thank you very much.

Jefferson And Black America

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA. — In the summer of 1775 the Continental Congress ruled that military recruiters should not enlist any deserter from the British army, "nor any stroller, vagabond, or Negro." Among the delegates putting the black man in the category of unreliable was Thomas Jefferson, he who assured us "all men are created equal," third president of the nation, and builder of the Monticello mansion that sits now as a shrine outside this town.

Jefferson, as we have only recently been informed by historians, was a racist. The tour of his homestead still doesn't suggest the truth, nor do the living words of his popular writings, but as did so many others of the Founders, the Virginia planter equated freedom with color. Twenty per cent of Revolutionary Americans were black, but 80 per cent of them were kept in bondage. Jefferson himself owned as many as 200 slaves at Monticello, treating them kindly for the day but never to his death allowing them the good independence he so eloquently, if so selfishly, won for himself.

How could he have been thus blind, this democratic angel? The Monticello keepers of his reputation insist his motives concerning slavery were entirely benevolent. "Jefferson looked on his own slaves as part of his family; he felt their lack of education would condemn them if they were not adrift," in fact, this is nonsense. It is also ironic: The argument precisely parallels King George's viewpoint concerning colonists who pleaded for liberty.

The ugly truth is that Jefferson, a victim as well as an architect of his time, thought of black people not as people, or at best less than people (two-fifths less, actually, according to the original language of the U.S. Constitution). For most of his 55 years he looked on them as inferior, drastically different and other than ourselves.

"They secrete laws by the kidneys and move by the glands," he wrote to a period friend, "which gives them a very disagreeable odor." Besides this, according to a biography in Ebony magazine, on Sept. 18, 1793, Jefferson said on occasion that black people were irredeemably actually excessive "full, lascivious and amorous."

If all blacks were dull and tasteless to Jefferson, however, some were less so than others. As authors Fawn Brodie has documented, the planter probably sired three children by fair-skinned slave Sally Hemings. The kids, called "octoroons" in the term of the era, and named Beverly, Harriet and Tom, probably never enjoyed more than passing attention from their then aging father, and were eventually discreetly sent away to seek normal lives.

Some historians believe that Jefferson probably agreed with the law of the time that categorized his illegitimate children as slaves. Thus when the kids were moved out of Monticello they were duly and conveniently recorded in the plantation books as "runaways."

It is true there is evidence that Jefferson agonized over his patent hypocrisy concerning the equality of all people. So did others of influence back then. Patrick Henry once wondered aloud about the propriety of the fact that "I am the owner of slaves of my own purchase — I can not justify it." Yet if some consciences of the time were bothered, they were not bothered enough to provoke even small measures of racial decency.

Big Labor Gets A Lavish Gift

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives presented a lavish gift to Big Labor last week which is certain to have an inflationary impact upon construction costs and handicap efforts to expand low- and middle-income housing.

The new measure would allow secondary boycotts on construction projects, an act of irresponsibility which testifies to the clout of the AFL-CIO in the current Congress. COPE, the AFL-CIO's political arm, has boasted of 200 loyal friends in the House this term and claimed that 80 per cent of the candidates it helped to finance were elected.

The expansion of picketing at construction sites to include neutral employers (subcontractors) not party to the labor dispute has been a major union goal since the Supreme Court ruled such practices were secondary boycotts and therefore illegal in 1961. AFL-CIO president George Meany personally persuaded Speaker Carl Albert to push the bill this session knowing that more of its members are inclined to be friendly to labor demands than in some past years.

A similar grant of strangulation power to the building trades unions is pending in the Senate Labor Committee, which is expected to report it out favorably after Congress returns from vacation in the fall.

The legislation treats all independent contractors who bid separately in their field on a construction project as if they were engaged in a joint venture and therefore a strike by one of these contractors should prevent the others from also working on that project. It will inevitably mean more work stoppages with accompanying increases in cost for residential, commercial and government construction projects.

The construction union argues that they are currently denied the right to take action, instead of close down a business completely, that is engaged by the industrial plant unions. In industrial plants, a union representing employees can legally picket the plant site even though employees represented by other unions in the plant refuse voluntarily to cross the picket line.

But the difference with construction work is that at a common situs there may be not only a primary employer but many secondary employers who are independent, while employees in an industrial plant are all dealing with the same primary employer. A contractor on a construction job has no control over the labor relations of the other contractors on the job — nor should he have.

Many Congressmen were unhappy about facing this issue, suspecting that they could make enemies no matter which way they voted. Rep. Robert Duncan (D-Ore.) protested that "it is an intensively lobbied issue and the parties are highly polarized. Both labor and management look upon this bill as vital to their survival."

U.S. Probes Kissinger's Garbage

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — The National Enquirer says the story it wrote after a reporter retrieved several bags of trash from behind Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's home has prompted a Secret Service investigation.

The weekly newspaper says in its latest edition it was told by a Secret Service spokesman that the agency is investigating why "important documents were thrown out in Mr. Kissinger's garbage."

The newspaper reported that the trash, in addition to such items as a Super shopping list, included detailed work schedules for agents assigned to Kissinger and a note about weapons and ammunition used by the agents.

Tuesday Day Of Decisions For BH Voters

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Benton Harbor voters Tuesday will nominate two candidates for mayor, four candidates for commissioners-at-large, and decide if they want a new city charter.

City elections in Benton Harbor are "non-partisan," but this one comes to close to being a political party battle as five of 10 candidates on the primary ballot belong to the "Clean Slate" or the "Common Sense" tickets.

Two independents, Wilco L. Cooke, and Larry E. Johnson, are trying to unseat Mayor Charles F. Joseph who heads "Clean Slate."

Seven candidates are on the ballot, in the commissioner-at-large races: Daniel M. Garlinger, Morgan L. Hager, Jr., and Terrel N. Wilkins are running independently. Mrs. Annie Lee Robinson, and incumbent Charles (Mickey) Yarbrough, are running on the "Common Sense" ticket.

Barbara R. Huckaby and Elias McGrew are "Clean Slate" candidates on the ballot. And Willie T. Burton is running as write-in candidate under the "Clean Slate" banner.

Yarbrough is the lone incumbent on the primary ballot because Commissioner Virgil May is not seeking re-election. The primary will trim commissioner-at-large candidates to two for full four-year terms in the Nov. 4 election.

There's more partisanship for the November election when "Clean Slate" fields three ward candidates and "Common Sense" two.

The charter is a "Yes" or "No" vote with simple majority deciding its fate.

Benton Harbor has 7,404 registered voters. Polls will be open at 10 precincts from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

One campaign worker said some city residents who have never voted before but are registered now may believe that property ownership, or certain tests are required to vote. The ONLY requirements are that you be registered and ballot in the ward and precinct where you are registered.

Polling places:

First Ward — first precinct, Calvin Britain school, second precinct, senior high.

Second Ward — first precinct, Benton Harbor junior high; second precinct, Lake Michigan Catholic middle school third precinct, Columbus school.

Third Ward — First precinct, city hall; second precinct, Seely McCord school; third precinct, Storn Brunson school.

Fourth Ward — First precinct, Naval Reserve Armory; second precinct, Morton school.

Police Team Cuts Highway Crashes

By DENNIS COWSWELL

PAW, PAW — Area state police are taking a big STEP toward reducing traffic-related deaths and injuries across northwestern Michigan.

Under the STEP (Selective Traffic Enforcement Program)

in effect since June 1, casualty accidents along two major area traffic corridors, US 31-33 and I-94, have been significantly reduced, according to Sgt. H. Cal Rosema of state police district headquarters in Paw Paw. The new STEP program differs from past selective enforcement programs in that it uses a team of six troopers on a fulltime basis throughout the week. A federally-funded program in Cass, Berrien, and Van Buren counties from 1972-74 used troopers working overtime for selective enforcement on weekends only.

Rosema said that during June, casualty accidents along the 20.4 miles (excluding cities in between) of US 31-33 from Niles to the Twin Cities were reduced to five, compared to nine for the same period last year.

A previous study of the stretch, Rosema said, determined that accidents were most likely to occur during the rush hour period between 3 and 5 p.m., and that the worst days were Friday and Tuesday. By concentrating the efforts of the patrols at these times and days, Rosema said there was only one casualty accident on a Friday during June, none on a Tuesday, and only two between 3 and 5 p.m. on any day.

And of the five accidents where injury or death occurred, only two happened when the enforcement team was on duty, he said.

Similar results were obtained on the 42.6 mile stretch of I-94 in Berrien county, where there was a high concentration of 118 casualty accidents last year. There, Sunday and Wednesday and 8 a.m. and from 4-6 p.m. were determined as the time when the most accidents occurred. By concentrating the patrols, Rosema said, casualty accidents were reduced from 11 in June, 1974, to four in June of this year.

During the June period, 250 citations (202 for speeding) were issued, and 300 warnings given on US 31-33, and 318 citations (407 for speeding) and 81 warnings on the I-94 stretch.

Rosema said he believes the high visibility of the marked cruisers used, combined with the strict enforcement of the 35 m.p.h. speed limit, have made drivers very conscious of adhering strictly to the traffic laws. He said July figures are now being checked to see if there has been a "residual" effect of drivers being more caumachine about 4 p.m. and she left for about 15 minutes. When she came back the clothes were gone, she said.

Leco To Again Seek Tax Break On New Plant In SJ Township

Leco Corp. of St. Joseph plans to renew a request to St. Joseph township tonight for a township industrial district designation, that might save Leco perhaps $50,000 or more over the next 12 years.

Robert Warren, Leco executive vice president, said today his company would go before the township board tonight asking that 8.9 acres containing an incomplete Leco production and warehouse facility be designated by the township as a plant rehabilitation and industrial development district.

Leco made an initial request for the designation in a letter to the township supervisor late last year, but no formal action resulted, Warren said.

The designation, possible under a state law last year, is to promote industrial growth by giving firms that modernize or expand the same tax rate as before for 12 years, it was reported.

The tax break might represent $50,000 or more in property tax savings to Leco over 12 years, Warren said.

The 8.9 acres south of Hilltop road contains a yet-unfinished 50,000 square foot production and warehouse facility that will employ some 30 people. It is expected to go into use early in 1976, Warren said.

He noted the plant building permit was for $300,000.

"We just want the board to approve or disapprove (the designation) ...," he said. "All we ask is that there's formal action taken on it."

Warren said his firm broached the tax break issue for the 8.9 acres in a letter to St. Joseph Township Supervisor Orval Benson on Sept. 30, 1974, but had received no formal action.

Eau Claire Youth Is Top 'Pit-Spitter'

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Dale Ostema, who operates the mechanical cherry pitter at Tree-Mendus Fruit Farms, was rewarded for his weeks of practice pit spitting Saturday by winning the Second International Cherry Pit Spitting contest.

Ostema, 16, of Eau Claire, fired a tart cherry pit 25 feet, 8 1/4 inches, to outdistance the competition at the international event, held at the Eau Claire U-Pick farm.

Herb Teichman, tournament chairman and owner of Tree-Mendus Fruit, said that no shadow has been cast on the event because it was won by an employee. Young Ostema's "form was excellent and he was spitting cherry pits for practice during most of July," Teichman said.

Teichman said he was happiest that the event, which commanded nationwide coverage by radio stations and newspapers, gave him a chance to advertise Michigan cherries.

Second place went to a Chicago man, Ray Raspattello, whose pit spit was 24 feet, 9 1/2 inches. Third place was captured by Gale Bonczkowski, Riverside.

About 50 pit spitter fans were on hand for the finals Saturday. Although rain held attendance down, Teichman said there were television crews from Detroit, Kalamazoo and South Bend recording the event.

During the week about 125 people tried to qualify for Saturday's finals. Teichman said the contest raised about $60. He will match that amount, and donate the $120 to Lee Memorial hospital, Dowagiac.

The 1974 finals were held in Dowagiac on an asphalt street, while this year's contest took place on sand. The sandy surface eliminates the advantage of the "bounce, jump and roll" of the pit. This explains, according to Teichman, why the winning spit fell short of 1974's 41 feet.

Last week the contest was given publicity nationwide, he said. The opportunity was used to sell consumers on the idea of buying Michigan cherries.

Crash Kills Former BH Man

A 23-year-old former Benton Harbor man was killed early Saturday near Tampa, Fla., when the pickup truck he was driving collided head-on with a car.

The Florida State Highway Patrol reported Ronald Lee Wolford, 23, North street, Wimauma, Fla., died in the accident which occurred about 2:30 a.m. Police reported Wolford was killed after an auto, attempting to pass, entered his lane. Police said Wolford was driving without his headlights on. No ticket was issued.

The driver of the auto and a passenger were still hospitalized this morning, police said. Wolford was alone in his truck.

Mr. Wolford was born Sept. 8, 1951, in South Haven.

Surviving are his widow, the former Patricia Crowder; his mother, Mrs. Helen Wolford, Benton Harbor; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wolford, Bald Knob, Ark.; a brother, Roy, Jr., Riverview, Fla., and a sister, Kathy Wolford, Benton Harbor. His father, Roy Wolford, preceded him in death in 1973.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Fairplain chapel, Florin funeral home, where friends may call. Burial will be in North Shore Memory Gardens.

Jury Says He's Guilty Marathon To Begin

A Berrien Circuit court jury late Friday night returned a verdict of guilty of armed robbery against Anthony Lee Burns, of Sodus township.

Burns, 21, of 3253 Townline road, was convicted of the 1974 robbery of the former OK Electric shop, Pipestone street, Benton Harbor.

Burns was charged with robbing owner Harold Bartels of $32 with a .38 caliber pistol on May 9, 1974.

Juries in Judge Julian Hughes' court deliberated more than three hours before returning the verdict. Burns was jailed awaiting sentence.

Prosecution was handled by Asst. Prosecutor Jeff Long and defense by Grand Rapids Atty. Alphonse Lewis, Jr.

Fined For Violation

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission has imposed a $50 fine against LeRoy J. Powers, Jr., and Jacqueline M. Powers, owners of the Pump House lounge, 314 State street, St. Joseph, for having their premises occupied after the legal hour Feb. 7.

A 24-hour roller skating marathon begins at the Lakeshore Skating center, Stevensville, at 1 p.m. Tuesday with all proceeds going to a muscular dystrophy fund.

A skating center spokesman said a number of skaters have already signed up for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Skate-A-Thon, but that additional skaters are welcome at any time.

Skaters must have at least four donors willing to contribute a minimum 50 cents for each hour the skater participates in the marathon, a rink spokesman said.

Area mayors, community queens, live music and Ray Rayner, a Chicago television personality, will be on hand when the marathon begins, the spokesman added.

Participants will skate for an hour and get a 20-minute break before rejoining.

A skating center spokesman said that all proceeds will be donated towards research and treatment of muscular dystrophy, a degenerative of muscles which usually begins in childhood.

To Loosen Peach Skin Dip In Boiling Water

When canning peaches, the best way to loosen the skin is to dip the peaches into boiling water for about 45 seconds, then dip immediately into cold water.

The skins will then slip off much more easily than peeling. Same for tomatoes.

If you like lots of chunks in your chunky blue cheese salad dressing, try this quick trick.

Drain some large curd cottage cheese and add the curds to the dressing, which can be either homemade or ready-to-eat.

Let it chill overnight and you have a tasty white, but chunky, blue cheese dressing.

The best way to store frozen concentrated orange juice, once it's been reconstituted, is a subject of much controversy.

Some folks say in plastic containers, while others say glass. The citrus juice manufacturers say "glass is best."

More important than the container, however, is that you keep the frozen orange juice concentrate frozen (at zero degrees) until you're ready to reconstitute it for use.

If you plan to camp and back-pack this month, don't forget to take along the nonfat dry milk.

It surely eliminates a lot of problems simply by eliminating the weight of fluid milk. Besides, it saves space, saves money, you can mix just what you need at one time and not have to worry about spoiled milk.

All you need is water.

Freezing is not recommended for most cheeses because they usually become very crumbly and mealy when frozen and then thawed. Some freeze better than others.

KEEP SPONGE FRESH

You can keep your household sponges fresh by soaking them in cold salt water at regular intervals.

Former Resident Exhibits Work

James Leroy Evans, formerly of St. Joseph, is holding a one-man art show during August at the Phoenix Women's club, Phoenix, Ariz.

Evans, a graduate of St. Joseph high school and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Evans, 208 Western avenue, Benton Harbor, resides at 718 West Vine avenue, Mesa, Ariz.

The exhibit includes 24 oil and acrylic paintings of Western wildlife and scenery.

At the time, he also has a show at the Hayloft Gallery in Sedona, Ariz., and has exhibited in Scottsdale, Ariz., and San Diego, Laguna Beach and Carmel, Calif.

Evans is employed as art director in the publications department of Motorola Government Electronics Division, Scottsdale.

Antique Look

You may be able to pick up some old tin cans with covers at a garage sale; the ones that food canners in are attractive to use in a modern kitchen.

Because their colors are muted and their printing is old-fashioned, they look "antique." Some of them may even have recipes on them.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Husband Chose The Dog

Dear Ann Landers: I'd feel better if my marriage was broken by another woman, but it isn't. Maybe I can wise up, and whose sweethearts are crazy.

Tuffy was eight years old and had never been left alone. Whenever we wanted to go out, my mother-in-law had to dog-sit. We'd take Tuffy over there, depending on how my father-in-law was feeling.

On two occasions my mother-in-law was unable to come and we couldn't leave Tuffy there because he barked so loud when we came to get him, he'd wake up my father-in-law.

I suggested that MY parents dog-sit but Bill said, "Strangers make him nervous." So we stayed home.

I begged Bill to start leaving Tuffy for short periods of time until he became used to it. He said, "No, he'd get upset."

Finally, I went to our cler-gyman. He advised me to go out alone and said Bill would soon agree to come along. Well, it didn't work out that way. In desperation, I told Bill he had to choose between me and the dog. He chose the dog. I'd appreciate some comment from you, Ann. — Man's Best Friend But Not Woman's Dear Friend: No sign of Bill's incredible immaturity during courtship? How long did you know this little boy?

Consider yourself lucky to have gotten out of the marriage early. Any husband who would prefer his Bow-Wow to a wife would be a lousy husband.

Poor Start

Dear Ann Landers: When a person applies for a marriage license, is it mandatory to give your correct age and the number of previous marriages? I need this information soon. Thanks very much for your help, Ann. — Altar-Bound

Dear A.B.: I smell a rat — in fact, a couple of them. I strongly suspect you have not levelled with your intended in regard to your past — which is a poor way to start off a marriage.

Laws vary, but in Illinois, you would be asked your age as well as about previous marriages. If you falsify this information, the marriage would still be valid — provided you are of legal age, and you are not legally married to someone else — but your spouse may one day learn you lied and such deception might prove humiliating as well as permanently damaging.

Announce Meetings

BUCHANAN — Buchanan Unit 51, American Legion auxiliary, will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Post Home.

ANN LANDERS

Try Adoption

Dear Ann Landers: I am 32 years of age, in good health and full of pep. Luck smiled on me six months ago and made me a bride. Frankly, I had given up hope — and then this wonderful man came along.

We both love children and Ray would be a terrific father. I would give anything to have a baby but two years ago I had fibroid tumors and my gynecologist removed my uterus. I still have both my ovaries, however.

In this age of medical miracles, would it be possible to have a uterus transplant? Please ask your consultant and let me know. — Either Pink Or Blue Would Suit Me Fine

Dear P. Or B.: Sorry, at this writing there is no record of a successful uterus transplant. I suggest you look into adoption or take a foster child into your home. You and Ray sound like a couple who would make wonderful parents — and I hope it happens soon.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

She's Lost 758 Pounds

I have dieted continuously for the last two decades and lost a total of 758 pounds. By all calculations, I should be hanging from a chain bracelet.

I have done a lot of kidding around with Weight Watchers, but it is the only organization in which I ever lost a great deal of weight. But I fought them.

Every Tuesday morning, a group of us had to "weigh in" before the lecture. Our ritual was enough to boggle the imagination. We got together a check - list of precautions before we actually stepped on the scale.

Bathroom? Check. Water pill? Check. Have you removed underwear, wedding rings, nail polish? Check. Set aside shoes, corn pads and earrings? Check. Are you wearing a summer dress beneath your winter coat? Check.

The first week I stepped on the scale and my instructor said, "You have gained." (Next week, I cut my hair.)

The next week, she said, "You have lost eight ounces, but that is not enough." (I had the fillings in my teeth removed.)

The third week, I had dropped a pound, but my instructor was still not pleased. (I had my tonsils taken out.)

Finally, she really chewed me out. She accused me of not sticking to the diet and not taking it seriously. That hurt.

"I didn't want to tell you," I said, "but I think I am pregnant."

"How far?" she said coldly, clicking her ballpoint pen to make a notation on my card.

"Possibly three days," I said. She glowered. "Any other excuses?"

"Would you believe I have a cold and my head is swollen?"

"No."

"How about I was celebrating the Buzzard's Return?"

To Hinkley, Ohio, and had butter on my popcorn?"

She tapped her pen impatiently on the card and stared at me silently.

"Lint in the navel?" I offered feebly.

"How about first one at the trough?" she asked dryly.

I learned quickly never to argue with a woman who had the scales on her side.

I saw my old instructor the other day and she eyed me carefully and said, "When are you returning to class?"

"As soon as I have my appendix removed," I said, returning her gaze.

I'm not sure, but I think I heard her moan.

Chemical Name Is Preferred

Where are the missing B-Vitamins — that is, the ones besides B-1, B-2, B-4, and B-12? Confusing as it may be, they are known by their chemical names instead of numbers. They include Nicotin (nicotinic acid), Pantothenic acid (pantoic acid), and Choline. Today, the chemical names for even Vitamin B-1 and B-2 — Thiamin and Riboflavin — are preferred and being used more frequently.

Budget Experts Pleased Nervous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven months after Congress started its experiment of adopting a target budget and trying to hold to it, legislative budget specialists are modestly pleased but nervous.

The House, which originates all money bills, has passed 10 of the 14 regular departmental appropriations. Its Budget Committee says the total funding the House voted in these 10 bills before starting its August recess is slightly below the target figures set in the congressional budget and is close to President Ford's recommendations.

In the Senate last week, a $11.2-billion military weapons bill was rejected after Senate Budget Committee leaders warned that the figure would jeopardize congressional budget goals.

But there are catches that inspire the caution.

The Senate, traditionally the bigger spender, has acted on only four of the 10 departmental appropriations. House budget specialists estimate that the Senate has increased the House figures in those four bills by $2.8 billion — and the Senate has six more to work on.

The four appropriations remaining to be passed by the House include defense and foreign aid, both large and controversial items. The congressional budget calls for lower appropriations here than Ford recommended, providing a margin for more spending in other areas.

Continued recession may build irresistible pressure for higher government spending.

Much government spending is not controlled by appropriation. For example, Social Security benefits are automatic and interest on the public debt depends on the money market. House budget statisticians say so far the uncontrollables are running about even with estimates.

This is the first year for the congressional procedures, which were designed to give the lawmakers a better year-all grip on spending and revenues and a louder voice in setting national priorities.

In past years authorization bills and appropriations were passed one by one, handled by different committees, and the only central influence was the indirect one of the President's budget.

The new plan in broad outline calls for Congress to adopt early in the year a resolution that is in effect a tentative budget. In October, Congress then takes a second look and passes a new resolution that may accept changes.

Voters Resist Spending

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan voters, like Americans in many other states, have rejected proposed school budgets at a record rate this year.

Voters have been reluctant to make long-range commitments to school financing, rejecting nearly nine out of ten bond issues placed on the ballot in Michigan in fiscal 1974-75.

Michigan school districts have also been unsuccessful in raising operating millages.

According to the Michigan Education Association, voters rejected 30 of the 48 requests for school millage increases in the first quarter of this year.

What voters are doing is declining to heap more taxes on themselves.

But they do appear willing to hold the line. Tax proposals which ask voters to renew existing millage rates usually pass with little trouble.

But school officials say operating at a static level means annual cutbacks because inflation erodes buying power.

That has happened in Detroit, and officials say it will continue unless school finances are made less dependent on millage rates which can be raised only if voters approve.

Inflation has raised the yearly cost of educating the average public school student to almost $1,170, according to the trade publication, the Nation's Schools and Colleges. That's 14 per cent higher than last year, and officials say next year's costs are rising even faster.

The biggest expense for most districts — ranging up to 80 per cent in some areas — is salaries, with fuel costs running second on the list.

Ford Ends European Tour With Visit To Yugoslavia

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Ford, winding up a whirlwind East European tour, enjoyed a beforebreakfast swim today, planted a ceremonial tree and had a final meeting with President Tito, the most anti-Soviet leader in the Communist bloc.

After a breakfast meeting with Yugoslav Prime Minister Dzemal Bijedic, Ford drove to Belgrade's Park of Friendship where he placed soil around an eight-foot white fir tree.

He handed the spade in turn to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, his son Jack Ford and 14-year-old David Kissinger.

Meeting with Tito in the massive Federal Executive Council building, Ford told the Yugoslav leader:

"My son, who is a forester, was delighted to participate along with the secretary's son. Us old men need younger people."

At the tree planting, Ford told Belgrade Mayor Zivorad Kovacevic he hoped the tree and American-Yugoslav relations would grow together.

A lunch with Tito and a ceremonial visit to city hall will end Ford's European tour, which has taken him to five countries in 10 days. He is due back in Washington late Monday night flying from Belgrade via Mildenhall Air Force base, England, for a routine refueling stop.

Although Ford and President Tito really had nothing major to talk about, American officials said the occasion had important symbolic meaning, as the United States should demonstrate at every possible opportunity its support for Yugoslavia's independent line.

The President arrived Sunday in Belgrade at an opportune time to stress this support in his day and a half of talks. He, Tito and the leaders of 33 other nations, including the Soviet Union, had just ended the European Security Conference in Helsinki which recognized Russian dominance in most of Eastern Europe.

Ford, who also visited Poland and Romania during his tour, played on the theme of American support in his toast at a dinner given by Tito.

Big Finger-Pointing Duel Looms On Energy Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the price of fuel goes up, so will the intensity of blame-shifting by Democrats and Republicans as each side points the finger at the other.

In the final hours before Congress left last week for a month-long vacation, the lawmakers put aside their trusted debate over energy policy and voted simply to continue the present system of oil price controls for another six months.

President Ford is expected to veto that bill when he returns from Europe with the result that price controls on more than 60 per cent of U.S. produced oil will abruptly end Aug. 31. That oil will be permitted to rise in price from $5.25 a barrel to the unregulated market price of more than $11 a barrel.

By the administration's estimates, the retail prices of petroleum products then will rise gradually, adding as much as 6 cents to the gallon price over an eight-month period.

By taking off the month of August, Congress will not be able to attempt to override Ford's expected veto of the price-control extension measure before the controls expire, although there is some doubt that Congress would succeed in any such override effort.

Administration officials may have given a sneak preview of Ford's expected veto message in their criticism of Congress for failing to come up with an energy program.

Thus, the lawmakers are particularly sensitive about their vacation.

Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass.,

told the House in the waning hours before adjournment. "It is an irresponsible and unconscionable outrage against the American people for Congress to go home without an energy solution. He was booed and hissed by members.

But when Republican Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, used a parliamentary tactic to force an end to work on a Democrat-backed oil-pricing bill, there were cheers from both sides of the aisle. Both wanted to call it quits for now.

Another Nickel Bargain Is Lost

By Associated Press
You can't ride the Staten Island ferry for a nickel anymore, but the five-cent piece hasn't entirely lost its value.

Among the things turned up in an Associated Press spot check of items that still cost only a nickel are:

—A chance at the jackpot in one of the 64 per cent of Nevada's 47,000 slot machines that take nickels.

—About 2½ tablespoons of peanuts from a vending machine in Alabama. (The same machines used to provide about a tablespoon for a penny so five cents is a big increase, but it's a nickel nonetheless.)

—A cup of coffee at the Last Chance cafe on Interstate 80, west of Reno.

—A local telephone call in Wapakoneta and Cridersville, Ohio. (Wapakoneta's other claim to fame is that it is the hometown of astronaut Neil Armstrong.)

—A "Swiss warbler" bird whistle at the Party Center in the Ala Moana shopping center in Honolulu. (The Party Center is a real bonanza for nickel spenders. Other five-cent items include balloons, elastic cords for masquerade masks and plastic spiders, six for a nickel.)

The most famous of the five-cent bargains was probably the Staten Island ferry, but New York City's fiscal crisis killed the nickel ride.

As of 12:01 a.m. today, the round-trip fare went to 25 cents under legislation passed by the City Council a little more than a week ago and signed by Mayor Abraham Beame on Friday.

Actually, you haven't been able to ride the ferry for a nickel for some time. That's because you had to buy a round trip. You put your fare in the turnstile — one dime please, exact change — on the Manhattan side. That entitled you to ride both ways at five cents a ride. There are no turnstiles on the Staten Island side.

If you were on Staten Island, wanted to go to Manhattan and didn't plan to return, you could ride for free. (The fare increase won't change that; you'll simply have to put in a quarter instead of a dime on the Manhattan side.)

Another recent nickel charge went by the boards on July 1. The tolls on the Burlington-Bristol and Tacony-Palmyra Bridges over the Delaware River between New Jersey and Pennsylvania went from a nickel to a dime. They're still a bargain, though. Other bridges across the Delaware cost 60 cents.

Gurney Jury Is Still Out

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The jury in the influence-peddling trial of former Sen. Edward J. Gurney entered its second week of deliberations today after questioning the judge on one charge in the 11-count indictment.

The question from the jury prompted an hour-long secret meeting Sunday of U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman, defense attorneys and prosecutors.

The meeting was called by Krentzman to work out a response to the question, the first communication from the panel since Thursday.

As always, Krentzman declined to disclose the contents of the jury note or his negotiated response.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated about three and one-half hours Sunday after getting the morning off to attend church. The panel, which received the case last Monday, has now deliberated nearly 42 hours in the 24-week-old bribery conspiracy trial.

At stake is the fate of Gurney, former aide Joseph Bastien and Federal Housing Administration officials K. Wayne Swiger and Ralph Kneisz.

The four are charged with conspiring to shake down Florida builders for campaign contributions in return for favored treatment from the FHA.

If convicted, Gurney faces a maximum sentence of 42 years

Doris Day Is True Lover Of Animals

"I don't believe in sending dogs to school. I don't believe in having them do tricks for the amusement of their owners. People don't ask their children to do tricks before they are fed, so why ask that of their pets?"

One of the most popular and respected women in Hollywood is Doris Day. But her interest no longer remains with the glamour of show biz; she has, in her own words, turned her life over to helping animals.

In this week's cover story, Doris Day talks about how, as chairman of Actors and Others for Animals, she is working to prevent inhumane treatment toward our much abused animal friends. Her home life has been drastically altered, her long-range career plans have been abandoned, in order that she can devote herself full-time to animals.

WASHINGTON (KFS) — Talking with Democratic polls is depressing, particularly in the light of the recent Gallup poll which showed President Gerald Ford walking over Ted Kennedy. "What we have," said a battle-scarred veteran, "are seven superb candidates for Vice President, but nobody to lead the ticket." Personally pro-Jackson, he noted sourly, "I don't know what 'Scoop' has to do to get above eight percent of Democratic preferences (in the polls). Go to the moon?" The mobility of Jackson to get airborne is one of the great mysteries of current politics. "Maybe Scoop's problem," said another supporter, "is not that he lacks charisma, but that he's not dull enough to compete with Jerry in the 'normalcy' stakes."

After you have listened for a while (politicians love to fill you in on "the situation"), the question inevitably arises: "Who?" At this level there is a singular consensus among both those who favor the ticket and those who oppose it: "Humphrey and Benton on the fifth (or sixth) ballot." According to this scenario, the outstanding feature of the Democratic Convention will be veto groups; that is, blocs that can not nominate their candidates, but can prevent other nominations. The two that immediately come to mind are the George Wallace contingent and those we might call the "McGovernites" for lack of a better word, although McGovern himself is clearly not a viable candidate.

FUBBED BY DEFEATS

Defeat brings out the worst in some men, but the cumulative impact of defeats seems to have purged Humphrey of a number of his less admirable characteristics. Confessedly I am an old personal friend of his (though I have laid into him here when I thought it justified) and worked closely with him in the 1964 campaign and later in my White House stint. The one thing that invariably drove me nuts about this extraordinarily talented man was his obvious political hunger. He would do anything to please an audience. (Indeed, I once said to him, "Please, Hubert — don't ever address the flat-worlders!") This perpetual search for love often led him to denounce himself, one of the most maddening symptoms was his penchant for the endless speech which often trivialized significant ideas.

Experts Hope To Clean Water In Lakes By '79

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — Top American and Canadian researchers see signs of hope that the contamination problems facing the Great Lakes will be under control by 1979.

The experts met last week at a conference involving a review of the pact to clean up the Great Lakes signed by Canada and the United States in 1972.

The session, held in nearby Windsor, Ont., was conducted by the International Joint Commission (IJC), which handles problems involving the boundary waters between the two countries.

When the pact was signed three years ago, the goal was to get the cleanup job done by the end of 1979.

Canadian estimates they will have 90 percent of their work done; but the U.S. side is lagging behind, estimating that the work will be finished by 1979.

Lack of money and administrative red tape were cited as reasons for the holdup.

But IJC officials say the money — some $18 billion being provided nationwide — is now available for projects such as the one to improve Detroit's massive sewage treatment works that serve more than three million people in the metropolitan area.

"It takes two things—money and desire, and we have both now," said Henry Smith III, head of the American delegation on the IJC.

At present, only a third of the 900 million gallons of waste water discharged into the Detroit River is receiving treatment. But officials say that figure will be boosted to 50 per cent by the end of the year.

Some improvements in the condition of the Great Lakes already are evident.

Ralph Purdy, Michigan's top environment control official, said Detroit has made major progress in controlling phosphorous, which caused the growth of smelly clumps of algae in Lake Erie.

Purdy predicts that by next year the Detroit sewage treatment system will be removing 90 percent of the pollutant.

The Rouge River no longer runs bright orange from the pollutants of the Ford Motor Co. industrial complex.

And the chalky tinge in the Detroit River from the discharges of chemical plants in Wyandotte is gone.

A few years ago, gooey oil deposits streaked the surface of many industrial sites along the Great Lakes.

Many trouble spots, however, still loom big.

At the conference in Windsor, some 80 "serious" problems were identified, ranging from the shores of Lake Superior to the waters around urban complexes.

And the cleanup job gets ever bigger as new, less obvious problems are uncovered.

One concern centers on the discovery of PCB—the chemical compound polychlorinated biphenyl—in the flesh of fish.

Buchanan Theft Break-In May Be Connected

BUCHANAN — State police from the Niles post said they are investigating a possible connection between the theft of a motorcycle from a residence south of here and a break-in at a nearby Buchanan Co-Op building, both occurring between late Friday and early Saturday.

Troopers said Penn-Central railroad repair crewmen found a motorcycle owned by Tom Lister, 1520 Bakertown road, Buchanan, abandoned along tracks just off of Bakertown south of the city, about 6:15 a.m. Saturday. Police said Lister was unaware the vehicle, valued at $150, had been taken from an unlocked garage when he was traced by the license plate as being the owner.

Some two hours later, Buchanan Co-Op employees told troopers that its weighing building had been broken into by forcing open a door and assorted hand tools valued at $110 taken.

Police said the two thefts might be connected because the motorcycle was found near the building.

Troopers said the two thefts might also be connected with two break-ins investigated by Buchanan police early Saturday.

Police on patrol about 4:40 a.m. Saturday found a panel to be garage door at Buchanan Auto Supply, 303 South Carol street, had been forced open, but there were no signs of entry. About 7:50 a.m. Saturday, employees of the Rossow Food Mill, also located on South Carol street, said a sliding door at the rear of the building had been forced open and $2 and keys to a soft drink machine and a truck taken.

Both of the city businesses broken into are located along railroad tracks and are in the southern part of the city.

Poor Will Get Historic Homes In New Policy

BROOKLYN, Conn. (AP) — Poor people will live in historic brick homes in this rural eastern Connecticut town this fall.

Across the state in Danbury, elderly couples will move into a converted motel.

And in the New York suburb of Stamford, a family will go apartment hunting knowing that despite an income of $16,000 Uncle Sam will help pay the rent.

They are among the first tenants in the federal government's newest version of subsidized housing. Created by the 1974 federal housing act, the program is a radical departure from the public housing of the past, which often piled low-income families into inner-city high-rise developments.

Zollar Suggests 'Contingency Language'

LANSING — As the Michigan legislature entered its final week before recess, State Senator Charles Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, declared it would be impossible to achieve a balanced budget in conference committee. Already five weeks overdue in passing budget appropriation bills, the lawmakers also have to cram in passage of several other major bills in what is expected to be a frantic week in the state capitol chambers.

Zollar, ranking Republican on the Senate appropriations committee, and other sources said the $3.84 billion budget is still some $60 million out of which compared to estimated revenues.

Zollar suggested one solution will be "contingency language" in every budget bill which would say: "Here's your money, but be ready to take an across-the-board cut in the third quarter on the fiscal year."

Gov. Milliken could achieve the same end by accepting the budget bills but then ordering each department to take a percentage cut in order to balance the books.

Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald, in anticipation of a hectic final week before recess, last Friday told his colleagues to wear their track shoes. "We're going to meet in the morning, the afternoon, and if necessary in the evening."

Originally set for adjournment July 1, the session has already run five weeks overtime, and the windup week will still see the same frantic law-making as in past years.

In addition to budget bills, the legislature also has other major issues to ram to final passage—the same issues which kept them here so long.

Among them are a complete revision in the state's business tax system and a sweeping political reform bill which affect office holders, candidates and lobbyists from local points to the governor.

Legislative leaders didn't bother to try and set a schedule for the week. Everyone knows session hours will depend on the progress of bills as measures criss-cross between the chambers, in and out of conference committee, hitting greased skids or slamming into unexpected snags.

The best that legislators hope for is to avoid a repeat of last year's 22-hour marathon session which lasted until 8 a.m. on a Saturday.

Lawmakers must also pass

Milliken's "single business tax," which would replace eight current business taxes. That is currently in a House-Senate conference committee, with a meeting slated for today.

Still not out of the Senate is the massive political reform bill, which regulates campaign financing, lobbyist registration, disclosure by public officials and public financing of gubernatorial campaigns. The landmark bill must also go to a House-Senate conference to work out differences.

Finally, the legislature has a flock of "cats and dogs" bills which need passage, including an important revenue sharing measure and a constructive bonding bill.

FEELIN' BETTER: Preston Stroup, 62, Chief Photographer for the Associated Press in Michigan, relaxes at his Royal Oak home over the weekend and holds a brick which hit him in the forehead Tuesday night. Stroup was attacked by a group of brick-throwing youths while covering a disturbance which followed the fatal shooting of a black teenager by a white bar owner in Detroit. Stroup suffered multiple lacerations of the forehead, ear and nose and escaped an attempt to drag him out of his car. (AP Wirephoto)

Congress Votes

BY CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY

WASHINGTON — Votes of area members of Congress on key roll calls for the week ending July 25 were:

SENATE
Voting Rights Act. With twelve votes to spare, the Senate voted 72-19 to cut off a filibuster (prolonged debate) on a bill extending the Voting Rights Act of 1965 for 10 years and expanding its coverage to language minorities, including Spanish-speaking Americans.

A three-fifths majority of sworn-in Senators, or 60 votes, is needed to invoke cloture.

President Ford has indicated that he would sign the bill although he would prefer legislation extending voting guarantees to all the states.

(Subsequently the Senate adopted an amendment cutting the length of the extension from ten years to 7 (caption below). The seven year extension then passed 72-12.)

Voting to cut off filibuster on Voting Rights Act: Griffin (R), Hart (D).

Voting Rights Act. By a 52-42 vote, the Senate adopted an amendment extending the Voting Rights Act for seven years rather than for 10 years as recommended by the House. Adoption of the amendment meant that the bill would have to go back to the House for further action instead of going directly to the White House for the President's signature.

President Ford said he would accept a five- to ten-year extension of the act but stressed that the top priority was having the bill on his desk before Congress recessed August 1.

Voting to extend Voting Rights Act for seven instead of 10 years: Griffin (R).

Voting to extend Voting Rights Act for 10 years: Hart (D).

HOUSE
Arms to Turkey. By a 208-223 vote, the House refused to permit the Ford administration to resume limited arms shipments to Turkey. Arms shipments had been cut off in February by Congress because of Turkey's 1974 invasion of Cyprus using U.S.-supplied arms in violation of American law.

Voting to resume arms shipments to Turkey: Brown (R), Hutchinson (R), Vander Jagt (R), Rhodes (Minority Leader).

Voting not to resume arms shipments to Turkey: Blanchard (D), Conyers (D), O'Neill (Majority Leader).

OIL Price Controls. By a 202-220 vote, the House rejected a proposal to allow price controls on domestic oil to phase out by 1980. If Congress enacted windfall profits tax to return to the government and the consumer most of the profits which oil companies made as a result of the higher prices.

Supporters of the proposal to phase out price controls on domestic oil argued that the higher prices were necessary to stimulate more domestic exploration and development of oil and gas resources, and that this development would be encouraged by a provision allowing oil companies to escape the windfall profits tax on money they "plowed back" into exploration and development.

Opponents of the proposal argued that decontrol would allow the oil companies to overcharge consumers; that the price of oil was already sufficiently high to encourage its development and production; and that decontrol would allow the price of domestic oil to rise to whatever price level the Arab oil-producing countries set for their oil.

Voting to phase out price controls on domestic oil: Brown (R), Hutchinson (R), Vander Jagt (R), Rhodes (Minority Leader).

Voting not to phase out price controls on domestic oil: Blanchard (D), Conyers (D), O'Neill (Majority Leader).

OIL Price Ceiling. The House took out of an energy bill, by a vote of 215-199, language which would have set an average price for domestic oil of $7.50 per barrel. This price would allow the price of two of every three barrels of domestic oil to rise from $5.25 to $7.50 — and would require that the price of the other one of every three barrels be rolled back from its present level of $12-$13.

Supporters of the proposal said that the $7.50 per barrel price it allowed was sufficiently high to encourage maximum oil production in the United States and that to allow prices to rise any higher would fuel inflation and allow the oil companies to reap excessive profits from consumers.

Opponents of the proposal said that the price was too low and would encourage Americans to use more oil at the same time that it discouraged domestic exploration and production.

Voting for $7.50 per barrel oil price ceiling: Blanchard (D), Conyers (D), O'Neill (Majority Leader).

Voting against $7.50 per barrel oil price ceiling: Brown (R), Hutchinson (R), Vander Jagt (R), Rhodes (Minority Leader).

ELECTED: Ralph A. Lynam of St. Johns, Mich., was elected third vice-president of International Association of Lions clubs during 58th annual convention in June at Dallas, Texas. Lynam is owner and president of public accounting and computer systems firm in St. Johns.

MACKINAW CITY, (Nov. 1, 1957) — Mighty Mackinac Bridge, the five-mile long colossus linking Michigan's Upper and Lower Peninsulas, was formally opened today by Gov. G. Mennen Williams amid pomp and pageantry.

With helicopters buzzing overhead and an army of newsmen and photographers recording the event, Gov. Williams led a motorcade of dignitaries across the massive span from St. Ignace to Mackinaw City to become the first person in history to pay the bridge toll.

In presenting his check for the $3.25 toll, Gov. Williams said "I hope this check will help the toll takers to reduce the debt of $100 million to this bridge, which will tie all of Michigan closely together."

It was a triumphant moment for Williams, whose support for the bridge project encouraged his detractors in the legislature. He called it "Joey's Folly."

"Just like their arrival, this bridge opens a new land to be used and enjoyed by the citizens of Michigan and neighboring states," said Brown. "I predict that this bridge will bring a new period of prosperity in the Straits of Mackinac region and to the west of the Upper Peninsula."

The bridge, considered an engineering marvel, is the world's longest suspension bridge — 8,614 feet. Dr. David Steinman, designer and chief engineer for the bridge's construction, claims it is also one of the safest bridges in the world.

"The fact that this bridge was built in a basically hostile environment required that the bridge be safe," Dr. Steinman said. "Theoretically, this bridge could withstand winds exceeding 600 miles per hour. Even up here at the Straits, such winds are unlikely."

Construction of the span was a colossal project. It took 10,000 workers three years to build. The structure contains one million tons of steel and cement. No suspension cables, if unbroken, would reach twice around the world.

The Instant It Happened

THREE QUEENS

Monarchs in mourning. It is one of the few displays of emotion they may share with the commoner, for royalty must stand apart as a symbol, more faultless, more indomitable, more serene. But even in their rare public grief there is regality.

The King of Britain, George VI, is dead. He died after a day's hunting at his country estate at Sandringham. "It's been a very good day's sport, gentlemen," he said after shooting 50 hares. He died that night in his sleep. Woodsman and gamekeepers carried their monarch's coffin to the parish church where a piper piped a lament.

But now, this Feb. 11, 1952, the great of the world have gathered to pay homage. Prime Minister Winston Churchill. The royalty of Europe. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the NATO forces. Dukes of the realm. And the people, by the thousands.

In a moment of national mourning, miners lay down their picks, clerks put aside their pens. Even in airplanes all over the vast but dwindling Empire, passengers stand briefly in silence.

The King's elder daughter, Elizabeth had been on a tour in Kenya when her husband, Philip, heard and broke the news at a riverside. At the foot of the King's bier is a wreath with a note: "Papa. From your loving and devoted daughter and son-in-law, Lilibet and Philip."

She is daughter no longer but Queen, Elizabeth II, monarch of Britain and the Commonwealth at age 25. Now, at Buckingham palace, waiting for the coach that will take them to Westminster Abbey, she stands with her grandmother, Dowager Queen Mary, and her mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, the first commoner to be a British queen since Henry VII married one.

Ron Case, photographer for Keystone, a photo service, rests his camera on an old beer crate while working inside the palace yard. It is cold, and he has been working on the King's funeral all day. The queens emerge and stand together for a moment. Case sees them, "not as queens, but as grieving women," and captures a timeless freeze.

High Court Upholds Berrien Verdict

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

The Michigan Supreme court has reversed a decision by the state appellate court involving a Berrien county case and ruled police do not have to advise a suspect he has the right to refuse a vehicle search.

The appeals court in March reversed a conviction by Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrne in which a Detroit man was convicted of possession of heroin, and ordered the case back to Berrien county for a new trial. However, the supreme court ruled: "In this, the court of appeals erred."

The defendant in the case, Ervin Eugene Lumpkin, 36, was convicted by Byrne in a non-jury trial in 1973 and sentenced to 16 months to 4 years in prison. He was convicted of possessing heroin in 1972 after a car in which he was riding was stopped by state police on I-94 in New Buffalo township. The heroin was found in a shaving kit in the trunk of the car.

The appellate court held "the failure of the trooper to advise defendant of his rights and that he need not submit to a search renders defendant's consent involuntary." During the trial, the prosecution maintained Lumpkin voluntarily opened the trunk, but Lumpkin contended his consent was given under "coercive" circumstances, and he was not advised of his right to refuse consent to a search.

In its opinion, the supreme court held a suspect "need not necessarily be informed of his right to refuse to consent to a search as a precondition to a valid consent."

The supreme court bumped the case back to the appeals court "for redetermination of whether the (prosecution) demonstrated that the claimed consent was in fact voluntary and not the product of duress or coercion, express or implied."

It May Get A Bit Lively In Alabama's Bookstores

Q: I'd like to read more about George Wallace and his wife Cornelia. — E.E., Bates Rouge, La.

A: Be patient. Paul Hemphill is writing a Wallace biography for Grosset & Dunlap and Gov. Wallace wants to read it too, because, as he says, "Hemphill's even going around town inquiring about my wife's sex life." Cornelia's own book is due out about the same time. Ought to be lively in the bookshops.

Q: Why are the parents of the two Carolines (Kennedy and Ralston) trying so hard to keep their daughters away from boys? Are they just so stuffy? — F.E., Midway, Ohio.

A: The young girls are at a dangerous age, particularly frightening to parents like Jackie Onassis and the Prince Rainiers who have high hopes that their daughters will make fabulous matches (like Jackie and Grace). So they are trying to make sure that neither Caroline is carried away by some flashy entertainer or adventurer. We'll bet, however, that the girls end up doing what they want.

Q: Bachelor girl Jean is 33 now, pretty as ever, but totally turned off with the celebrity life. She has just opened a souvenir shop at a British vacation spot on the sea coast not far from her farm-cottage home in Cornwall.

Q: I've been seeing photos of an Army General in Korea who smokes a corncob pipe and carries pearl-handled revolvers.

PEOPLE By Robin Adams Sloan

Is this the same General I recall from my childhood? — L.T., Birmingham, Mich.

A: No, you are thinking of the late General George Patton's ivory-handled guns and the late General Doug MacArthur's corncob pipe. This man is Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth, in charge of the crucial I Corps Group forces, waiting to see if the North Koreans start anything. But Gen. Hollingsworth is out of the Patton-MacArthur mold, a grandly profane militant show-off who gets results from his men.

Robin Adams Sloan welcomes questions from readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams Sloan, care of this newspaper.

Lone Crash Survivor Dies

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — The lone survivor of an Air Force cargo plane crash last weekend died Saturday at the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor, according to an Air Force Reserve spokesman. Staff Sgt. Christopher Belanger, 34, Pontiac, survived one week after the crash which instantly killed the five other crew members on board. The C130 was on a routine training mission when it crashed in an empty field near Inlay City. An Air Force team is investigating the crash to determine the cause. Belanger is survived by his widow and two sons.

Dangerous Creatures Found

WESTLAND, Mich. (AP) — An 18-year-old youth has been freed on $500 bond after his arraignment for receiving and concealing stolen property in the form of two rattlesnakes, a tarantula and an alligator. James Martinelli of Swanton, Ohio, was accused of taking the creepy cache Friday from the Nankin Mills Nature Center here. Wayne County sheriff's deputies said the creatures were found in the back of Martinelli's car Friday night, parked in a trailer court. Examination has been set for Aug. 11.

Fowlerville Boy Arrested

FWOLVERVILLE, Mich. (AP) — A 15-year-old Fowlerville boy was arrested Friday and held on an open charge of murder for the September 1974 stabbing death of 18-year-old Mary Ann Behringer, police said. Miss Behringer's body was discovered in her grandmother's Fowlerville home last Sept. 8. The slaying apparently occurred while the girl's hard-of-hearing grandmother was in an upstairs room, police said. Police Chief Bob Krishke said the name of the person arrested was being withheld because he is a juvenile. An Aug. 15 hearing was set for Livingston County Probate Court to determine if the youth should be tried as an adult, authorities said.

Pollution Forecast Ends

DETROIT (AP) — The air pollution forecast issued last Thursday for Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties was terminated at 1 p.m. Saturday, according to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. The improvement in air quality resulted mainly from changing weather, prompting the all-clear announcement, a DNR official said. The forecast, which predicted higher-than-normal concentrations of ozone resulting from a combination of auto exhaust fumes and a sunny stagnant hot air mass, presented no general health hazard, officials said.

U.S. Malaysian Embassy Stormed

shots from the building housing several embassies, wounding two policemen and a guard. Their conditions were not known.
A note dropped from a window said the terrorists demanded the release of seven Red Army men jailed in Japan, a helicopter to take them from the roof of the building and a Japan Air Lines plane to fly them to an unnamed destination.
Shortly after the deadline expired at 3:30 p.m. local time (6 a.m. EDT), V. Manickavasagam, Malaysia's communications minister, arrived at the building and said the terrorists had agreed to meet him. He said the government instructed to hold talks with the raiders after an emergency cabinet meeting.

Malaysian government sources said the terrorists were insisting on holding negotiations with the Japanese government through the Malaysian authorities.

Malaysian officials met with the U.S. Embassy's acting head of mission, Robert S. Dillon, and Japanese Ambassador Michiaki Suma, to discuss the situation.

Police sources said the raiders were members of the notorious radical group which has carried out a number of terrorist attacks in Europe, the Middle East and Asia over the past few years.

A three-man suicide squad of the Red Army attacked Tel Aviv's Lod Airport in May 1972 with machine guns and hand grenades, killing 24 and injuring many others.

In July 1973, one Red Army member was among four hijackers who commandeered a Japan Air Lines jumbo jet after it took off from Amsterdam. Two Japanese were involved in the raid on Shell's oil refinery in Singapore last January, while three Red Army "soldiers" held up in the French embassy in the Hague last September.

Woman Hurt Assisting Upset Boat

A 16-foot catamaran sailboat, which capsized on Lake Michigan Sunday evening, was towed to port by the St. Joseph Coast Guard, but a woman on another sailboat, which was aiding the catamaran, received minor injuries.

Mrs. Richard (Catherine) Covert, Evans road, Eau Claire, was treated at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, for strained knee ligaments sustained when she and her husband attempted to right the catamaran.

According to the Coast Guard, the catamaran capsized about a half mile out in the lake and about two miles south of St. Joseph with Larry Uhlaine, St. Clair Shores, and John P. Doyle, 1911 Union street, Benton township, aboard. One was brought in by the Coast Guard and the other by the Coverts.

The Coast Guard said the Coverts in their 31-foot sailboat were attempting to right the catamaran, but five-foot waves fouled their attempt.

SJ Firemen Respond

St. Joseph firemen over the weekend extinguished a fire in a tree, made a smoke investigation at Lakeview terrace, and administered oxygen to a woman having difficulty breathing.

Firemen reported a tree at Langley and Harrison avenues caught fire Saturday morning when a power line went down. The blaze was extinguished after Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. linemen turned off the power.

No fire was found in investigating an odor of smoke in Lakeview terrace senior citizens residence, 601 Port street, at 11:36 a.m. Saturday.

Firemen administered oxygen to Erma Garrison, 217 First street Sunday morning when she reported she was having trouble breathing.

Garage Destroyed

A garage adjacent to a condemned house at 367 Urbandale avenue was completely destroyed by fire Sunday night, Benton township firemen reported.

Firemen said they believe the fire was set, but the exact method was undetermined. Both the house and garage were scheduled for demolition.

Township firemen also reported an unidentified motorist with a fire extinguisher put out a fire in the engine compartment of a car owned by Wendy C. Gilliam, Haleville, Ala., Sunday.

Firemen from station three said the fire started in the car-burner. The blaze occurred on Maple avenue near the fire station.

NILES GIRL EYES BIG HORSE RACE

She Wants To See Country--Hard Way!

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

Plans to be one of the riders in horse race to a bicentennial staged in upstate New York in June, 1976, but when next summer rolls around please be patient in awaiting results of the contest.

Even under the best of circumstances, the results won't be known for at least three months, possibly four after the start.

Don't blame poor communications on the expected delay because the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jacobson of Lake Street in Niles plans to be among 200 riders in a 3,800-mile, cross-country race. Promoters of the contest say they expect the first rider to cross a California finish line some three months later.

The riders will not just be gunning for the honor of winning; one of the most unusual contests staged during America's 200th birthday year, they'll be competing for a top prize of $100,000 promised by the promoters, Bicentennial Grand Horse Race, Ltd.

In addition to completing her senior year at Niles high school this year, Miss Jacobson has several tasks to perform before the race is set to begin next summer. One of the top seven finishers in last summer's Cass county fair horse show, she plans to enter this year's Berrien county youth fair horse show.

Miss Jacobson must learn map reading, a requirement set by the contest sponsors to make sure each rider can make his way across the less-traveled portions of the nation. She must also secure a second mount for the race should her seven-year-old mare, "Imperial Sunshine," be unable to complete the long trip.

Headquartered in Shelbyville, Ill., the race group is still attempting to make final arrangements for the race and to obtain sponsors to insure the prize money.

Chuck Waggoner, vice president of the group, said the self-proclaimed non-profit organization is still awaiting word from state and national bicentennial commissions on endorsement of the race. He said the group has established an account in a Chicago bank to guarantee that $500 entry fees assigned each rider will be returned in case the race is not held.

In addition to plunking down the $500 entry fee, Miss Jacobson is seeking a sponsor to help pay for the costs of participating in the race. It is estimated that it will cost each rider $7 per day for the care of the riders and the two mounts they will be allowed to use. There is also the cost of outfitting each horse to be considered, she said.

Does a 17-year-old girl ("I'll be 18 by the time the race begins") have fears about setting out across the country on her own on horseback?

"No. There will be a car accompanying each rider to make sure they are okay and the horses are not abused. Besides, I've always wanted to see our country and I can't think of any better way to do it," she said.

A Buchanan native who for the past five years has served as an assistant U.S. attorney in Chicago today assumed duties as a full-time assistant prosecutor at the Niles branch of the Berrien prosecutor's office.

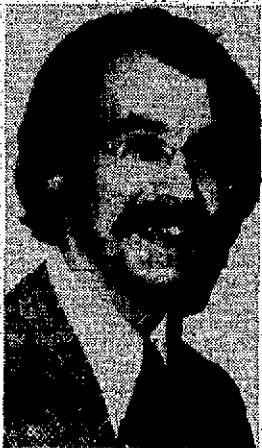

He's Michael Dwight Marrs, 31, now of St. Joseph, who was appointed to the new position of assistant prosecutor at the Niles branch, according to Berrien Prosecutor John A. Smietanka.

Marrs was on the staff of famed corruption buster James Thompson who resigned as U.S. attorney in Chicago recently to campaign for the Illinois gubernatorial nomination. Marrs served 18 months as chief of the narcotics prosecution section.

Marrs received his undergraduate degree from Michigan State University, and was awarded his law degree from Chicago-Kent, Illinois Institute of Technology. Marrs, whose salary will be $18,031, will join Asst. Prosecutor Jeff Long at the Niles office.

Smietanka noted the addition of Marrs brings the complement of his staff to 11 assistant prosecutors, compared to 10 years ago when there was one full-time assistant and two part-time assistants.

Candidate Filing
Deadline Aug. 15

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — Citizens interested in running for two vacated South Haven township elected positions will have until 4 p.m. Aug. 15 to file petitions according to Clerk Franklin Torp.

The position of supervisor and one trustee were vacated last week after Supervisor Clifford Klapp and Trustee Donald Getman were recalled from office in a special election.

A special election to fill the vacancies will be held Sept. 2 according to Torp.

The candidate in each race with the most votes will be elected to the unexpired terms through 1978.

Torp said candidates will need at least 50 signatures on their petitions. The township has 1,850 registered voters, Torp reported.

The clerk also noted that Getman, while recalled from his elected office, continues to be the township building inspector. Getman was appointed building inspector in April because of his qualifications, not because he was a trustee, according to Torp.

Torp said he understood Getman would resign as building inspector, but no formal letter of resignation had been submitted as of yesterday. The township board holds its next regular meeting Wednesday night.

Water Ban Lifted

BUCHANAN — A lawn-sprinkling ban and water use alert declared by Buchanan city officials last week has been lifted.

City Manager Robert Faulhaber said this morning that the ban was lifted after a check Saturday revealed water consumption in the city had been reduced by 180,000 gallons in a 24-hour period.

He said weekend rain and subsequent cooler temperatures combined with reduced water consumption enabled city officials to lift the ban.

The ban was declared Thursday during a heat wave and as one of four city water wells was shut down for repairs.

Faulhaber said repairs to the well have been completed, but pumping will not resume until state officials test the well. He said the well might not be placed back in operation until sometime next week.

Dowagiac Boaters
Saved From Lake

SOUTH HAVEN — Three Dowagiac men were rescued from Lake Michigan yesterday after their boat sank off South Haven.

Rescued by fellow boaters about 10:30 a.m. were William Younger, 41, 300 Chestnut, Dowagiac; the owner, Jerry Guntzberger, 35, 100 Lincoln, Dowagiac; and James Eagle, 31, 111 North 10th, Dowagiac. They were not injured.

The men were in a 15-foot outboard boat approximately one mile south of South Haven when the accident occurred, according to Lt. Robert Small of the Van Buren sheriff's marine patrol.

Small said the men were in a porch fishing area with approximately 75 to 100 other boaters. He said there were waves between two and six feet tall and that as Younger started to return to shore the boat was swamped.

R. Small gave immediate assistance to the men, none of whom were wearing life jackets, according to Small.

BAE PRESIDENT: Harold G. Schultmaker, Paw Paw attorney, is the new president of Van Buren County Bar association. Other officers are Atty. John T. McNeil, vice president, and Donald R. Hildebrand, secretary, treasurer; both also of Paw Paw.

SOUTH HAVEN VOTERS HAVE CROWDED BALLOT TUESDAY

By TOM KENNER

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — Contested races for mayor and three aldermanic seats face South Haven voters in the city's primary election Tuesday, Aug. 4.

All voters will cast ballots in the basement of city hall according to Clerk Rita Verdonk. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The two leading vote-getters in each race will face off in the non-partisan Nov. 4 general election.

Three candidates are seeking the two-year term as mayor. There are three candidates whose names will appear on the ballot for the first ward; three in the second ward; and six hopefuls in the third ward. Aldermanic terms are for four years.

One candidate whose name is on the ballot for the first ward announced Saturday that he was withdrawing although his name will stay on the ballot. He is Jeffrey Ducey, 27.

Candidates for mayor are William Anderson, 48, 21 Cass street; Matthew Goerg, 66, 200 Oak street; and Richard Lewis, 44, 712 Phoenix street. They are seeking the seat of incumbent Mayor Elizabeth Davis who is not a candidate for re-election, but has instead decided to run for the first ward aldermanic seat.

All three mayoral candidates have local political experience. Lewis was South Haven's mayor from 1968-73 and during the early 60's served as an alderman. Anderson served three years as an alderman, resigning last September because of what he termed "the inability (of the city council) to operate as team. Goerg has been on the city council since 1968 and would continue to serve as an alderman should he not win the mayoral race.

Anderson is vice president of Du-Wel Metal corporation and is general manager of the company's South Haven and Hartford plants. He has been a South Haven resident for eight years. He served on the Dowagiac board of education prior to moving to South Haven.

Goerg owns marinas in South Haven and Michigan City, Ind. He has served as city council representative to the public housing commission and Liberty Hyde Bailey museum board. He moved to South Haven in 1968.

Lewis is a teacher in the South Haven public schools system and has been a city resident since 1963. He has been active in several civic organizations including Chamber of Commerce and was instrumental in forming a Coast Guard auxiliary unit in South Haven two years ago.

Active candidates for firstward alderman will be Mrs. Davis, 37, 830 Monroe boulevard; and Ronald Kozlik, 37, 959 Hazel street. Kozlik is seeking their first elected office.

Mrs. Davis was elected mayor in 1973, becoming the first woman to hold the office. She previously served eight years on the South Haven board of education. She has been a permanent resident of South Haven since 1969 and was a summer visitor since 1928. Earlier this year she was named a woman of the year by Lake Michigan college, Benton Harbor. She is a member of the American Association of University Women and is on the board of the Women's Resource center, Grand Rapids.

Kozlik is co-owner of South Haven Produce company. A resident of South Haven 17 years, he has been active in the Moose and past Community Chest drives.

Candidates for second ward alderman will be Joseph Bromberg, 28, 914 Superior street; Neville Ferguson, 62, 1430 Michigan avenue; and incumbent councilman Rex Lineberry, 57, 829 Humphrey street. Bromberg and Ferguson are seeking their first elected office. Bromberg is a painter for C. L. Wolff and Son, Benton Harbor. A Vietnam veteran he has been a resident of South Haven three years. He is a member of the South Haven Coast Guard auxiliary.

Ferguson is a retiree. He was employed by the city board of public utilities 30 years, retiring in 1974. He has been a South Haven resident since 1937. He is a member of the Elks lodge.

Lineberry is production control manager for Adams Electronics, Bangor. A South Haven resident 30 years, Lineberry is seeking his third four-year council term. He is a member of the Elks lodge and Michigan Steelhead Fisherman's association. He is presently the city council representative to the Board of Public Utilities.

Candidates for third ward alderman are Viktor Anderson, 28, 439 Park avenue; Robert Linderman, 28, 810 Conger street; Robert Nichols, 26, 201 Center street; Alvin Novak, 65, 722 North Shore drive; Irving Tucker, 39, 612 North Shore drive; and incumbent councilman Robert Warren, 38, 318 North Shore drive.

Anderson, Linderman, Nichols and Novak are seeking their first elected office. Tucker served on the city council from 1966-71 and was on the Van Buren county board two years.

Anderson is a professional musician. A resident of South Haven four years, he is executive director of SPACE in South Haven, a member on the community arts council and is program chairman of the South Haven bicentennial committee.

Linderman is a fifth grade teacher in the South Haven public schools system. A South Haven resident since 1968, he is active as a Boy Scout leader.

Nichols is assistant manager of the Nichols Hotel in South Haven in addition to being a professional scuba diver and partner of a charter fishing service. He also attends Western Michigan university. A native of South Haven, he served on the city recreation board.

Novak is co-owner of the N & R department store, South Haven. He is a member of the board of South Haven Community hospital; is the city's harbor master and captain of the city's auxiliary police department force. He attended South Haven high school and became a permanent resident in 1968. He has been a director for the Red Cross and United Fund, was vice chairman of the city's urban renewal committee, is a member of the Lions club and was chairman of the Black river clean-up project in 1971.

Tucker is purchasing agent for the two South Haven plants of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass company. He was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor of South Haven in 1971; losing to Lewis. A resident of South Haven 14 years, he is third vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the riverfront development committee and the Michigan Steelhead Fisherman's association.

Warren is instrumental in teacher for the South Haven public schools system. During his council term he has served on the city recreation board and public housing commission. He was instrumental in the creation of the Community Education and Recreation program, a cooperative effort between the city and school system. He has been a resident of South Haven since 1965.

Although the election is non-partisan four candidates have announced an alliance in which they are supporting each other's candidacy. The candidates are Anderson, Davis, Lineberry and Tucker.

In June when they announced their effort the candidates stressed they were joined together philosophically and not as a voting block.

A PAUSE IN BERRIEN: Chuck Paul, 22, and Carl Groce, 47, both of Elkhart, Ind., stopped for a breather on M-140, south of Watervliet, Saturday on their trip on a bicycle for built-for-two that will take them into Michigan's Upper Peninsula and back home through Wisconsin and Illinois — more than 900 miles. They're stopping overnight in a tent and figure trip will take nine days, averaging 20 miles an hour when on the road. (Staff photo)

S.H. Candidate Withdraws
With Blast At Mayor Davis

By TOM KENNER

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — First ward aldermanic candidate Jeffrey Ducey announced he was withdrawing as an active candidate Saturday. Ducey's name will still appear on Tuesday's primary ballot along with Mrs. Elizabeth Davis and Ronald Kozlik.

"The issues that have been raised and positions taken make it clear that candidate Ronald Kozlik and myself are in agreement on the major issues and problems facing our city. We must stop the spread of political machines in South Haven," Ducey said in a statement.

"With the huge amounts of money being spent by the team in this campaign, it is apparent that people with the same goals must work together. Open-minded people with positive thinking must replace the stagnant and negative attitude of our present official, namely our mayor, who appears to be first ward alderman after an apparent failure as mayor. I say failure if we are to believe all the problems she has cited still exist after two years of her leadership or lack of leadership."

Ducey said he was throwing his support behind candidate Kozlik. Ducey's withdrawal leaves just the two candidates, Kozlik and Mrs. Davis, who will advance to the November general election.

NILES THIRD WARD BALLOT

Three Seek Aldermanic Seats

By JOHN DYE

South Haven

NILES — Balloting in the Niles city primary, Tuesday, Aug. 5, will be confined to the third ward where a three-way race for the Democratic nomination for two third ward alderman seats is to be settled, according to Mrs. Donna Fout, city clerk.

Seeking their party's nomination are incumbent Democratic Aldermen Clayton Hemphill and Bert Knoll. They are challenged by Ronald Dickson.

No Republican candidates filed for the third ward posts before the June 17 deadline, but Mrs. Fout added that write-in nominations for both Republicans and Democrats will be counted Tuesday for the November election.

Mrs. Fout said only the names of the three Democratic candidates will appear on the ballot and there will be no voting in the other three alderman districts because all other Democratic and GOP candidates are unopposed.

Hemphill, 50, of 1534 Maple street, is Develand from Bendix corporation, South Bend. He and his wife, Doris, are the parents of four children. Knoll, 48, of 1467 Hickory street, is a pressman at Simplicity Pattern company, Niles. He and his wife, Mary, have three children.

Both Hemphill and Knoll are seeking their second terms to the city council.

Dickson, 28, of 1426 Hickory street, is employed as Clerk company. Buchanan. He was an unsuccessful candidate for city clerk two years ago. He and his wife, Linda, are the parents of two children.

Polls at the third ward's two districts, the fire station at Third and Broadway streets, and the Southside school, at 9th, verbach and 10th streets, will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Big Andy Wouldn't Stay Down

Bean Western Am Champ

By JOHN VANHORN NEEDLE

Sports Editor

They just couldn't keep the

Andy Bean down at Point

O'Woods.

"Bean" took the 73rd Western

Amateur championship Sunday

by over Randy Simmons 1 up in a 36-hole match.

But the believe it or not accomplishments at the University of Florida All-American standing up to the crowd still have Mingo's Mob mauling.

He defeated defending champion Curtis Strange in Monday's morning round by hitting a shot out of a ravine to win the last of the 18th pin.

—The Lakeland, Fla., star got to 18th hole in an extra hole on Sunday's early quarterfinals on darkness settled over the Point. He came from three holes down with strikes on No.

14, 15 and 16 and won the match on the 18th hole with a 30-foot putt.

—On Friday, the son of the pro at Jekyll and Hyde Golf Club in Lakeland was forced to survive a four-man playoff in medal play to make match play Saturday and Sunday.

—And back on Wednesday, Bean arrived at the Point only a half hour before tee off after a flight from New York, where he attended an All-American awards banquet Tuesday night. When he stepped onto the Point Wednesday, it was the very first time he had ever seen the course.

So if you want to know what champions are made of, you have to go no farther than lovable Andy Bean.

Bean, a 6-4, 202-pounder, has been known to try to take a bite out of his ball, but he was cool and consistent against the University of Texas' Simmons, an out-of-state 6-7, 145-pound mighty mite from Shreveport, La.

Bean kept his long drives on the fairways all day, but he credited the championship to his putting game. "I started putting so good I couldn't stand it," he commented afterwards.

No putt was more important than his short one for par on the No. 17 hole. He hit off the tee to within 10 feet of the pin, rimmed the cup on a birdie try and settled for the par.

Meanwhile, Simmons evidently picked the wrong club, with a four-wood shot sailing over the green. "I thought I had hit a perfect shot," recalled Simmons. "I was sick when I saw it went over...and I was really sick when I missed that putt."

Simmons made an excellent recovery shot to within five feet of the cup, but missed a shot at par.

Simmons then almost saved his neck on the par-four 18th hole. His second shot was on the green but about 50 feet beyond the pin. His birdie attempt then came within an inch of sending the match into a playoff.

"I thought 'My God, it's going in,'" added Bean. "And when it missed I said 'Thank God.'"

Simmons, a third-team All-American and a quarterfinals loser to recently turned pro Craig Stadler in the Am last summer, had Bean down one through seven holes Sunday.

But Bean then birdied No. 8 to even the match.

It stayed even until No. 12 where a double bogey by Simmons (he chipped over the green on a shot out of the right trap) gave Bean his first lead of the sunny afternoon. Bean quickly made that a two-hole advantage with a birdie on 13.

But the match was soon even again when Simmons made a 12-foot putt for a birdie on No. 14 and Bean bogeyed No. 16 by missing a three-foot putt. Simmons got a par after driving in to the trees, hitting an iron into the right trap and chipping within four feet of the cup.

The deciding 17th hole followed.

It was sort of a revenge victory for Bean, who lost to Simmons 1 up in their only previous match play collision last year in the National Amateur.

Bean didn't make the prestigious U.S. Walker Cup team this year — "I disagreed with their selection," — also noted that he put a new grip on his putter after last Wednesday's round.

Bean's Western championship follows five college tourney titles earlier this year, but it will probably be his last season in the amateur ranks.

The 23-year-old marketing major has only one term of college left before graduation, and he probably will turn pro. "I plan to make golf my life because I love it so much."

But the 20-year-old Simmons thinks he'll be back at next year's Am. He "hates school" and is unhappy about having only a partial scholarship at Texas, but the communications major has decided to go back for his senior year.

Simmons won his morning semifinal match over Byman while carding four birdies and no bogeys. Byman had five birdies but four bogeys.

Bean also had five birdies and four bogeys against Strange, who posted one birdie and one bogey.

In the championship match, Bean shot a one-over-par medal score of 71. Simmons finished at 73.

This year's official Western Amateur attendance was well below last year at 12,442 overall, including 5,308 Sunday.

FINAL ROUND
Bob Byman, Raleigh, N.C., defeated Tom Stuchman, Omaha, Neb., 5 & 2.

Ellis To Play Out Option

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The agent for veteran Green Bay Packers cornerback Ken Ellis says Ellis will play for the Packers this season, but won't be back in 1971.

Ellis returned to training camp Saturday, and his agent, William attorney Earl Cromwell, said Sunday that "He's there to stay until May 31. But he's not going to play for Green Bay after this season. We just decided he's going to have to play out his option this year." Ellis, an all-pro once in five seasons and on the Pro Bowl squad last year, had walked out of training camp twice and been suspended by Coach and General Manager Bart Starr in a dispute over lack of progress in negotiations.

After Ellis worked out Saturday, Starr said only that, "Kenny wanted to come back to the team and he did."

But Cromwell said the Packers "have absolutely refused to bargain. I would not entertain the idea of negotiating with the Packers again."

"It just got to the point where we were wasting our time, and I felt I was doing the player more harm than good," he said of stalled contract talks.

Ellis had reportedly sought $125,000 from the Packers, but Bob Harlan, the team's corporate general manager, said Ellis had lowered his offer while the Packers had raised theirs. The Packers stood firm on their latest proposal, however, while Ellis and Cromwell sought more concessions. The agent said Ellis would have to play this season for 90 per cent of his 1974 salary, but added, "I'm not concerned about that. Ken has sufficient market value around the league that we won't have any trouble making up the money next year."

Martin Says He's 'Unorthodox'

New Yankee Manager Trying To Build Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin, the controversial new manager of the New York Yankees, was asked to characterize himself. He considered, for only a moment, which pigeon hole he wanted to occupy, then replied: "Unorthodox."

"I do the basics," he admitted. He is a scholar in the fundamentals of baseball. "But aside from that, I like to do what the other teams don't expect."

If there is one thing opposing teams have come to expect from the well-traveled Martin, now managing his fourth major league team, it is competition. He built division titlists in Minnesota and Detroit, and he managed Texas to second place last season in the American League's Western Division.

On Saturday, he was named manager of the Yankees, replacing the fired Bill Virdon. And by Sunday, he had a 2-1 record after a doubleheader split with the Cleveland Indians. "I'm very pleased with this ball club," Martin said of the team with which he starred as a second baseman from 1950 to 1957. "They're really pulling for each other, and that's something I like to see."

Martin also was asked if he was going to be a disciplinarian. "I'm not going to start telling my ballplayers what to do," said Martin. "All I care about is what they do in the ballpark."

Then the question of fines came up. "I don't believe in fines," he said. "I'm not a firing manager. I can get the point across in other ways. Besides, ballplayers make too much money for it to make any difference."

Martin has been one of baseball's hottest properties, so it may have been fitting that his first two days of his tenure here were the hottest of the year in New York.

The pattern has been: hire Billy Martin to build a pennant contender, fire him for insubordination, then watch the team fall to pieces.

Ousted Virdon May Join Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Fred Corbett, majority owner of the Texas Rangers, says that New York Yankees Manager Bill Virdon, replaced by former Texas Manager Billy Martin, may join the Ranger organization.

Corbett called Virdon "a good, knowledgeable baseball man who probably could be useful to us, and he may have gotten the short end of the stick for the second time."

Virdon, fired by the Yankees Saturday, was ousted in Pittsburgh under similar circumstances late in 1973.

The Rangers' front office and players wished Martin luck as the new Yankee manager. Corbett said, "Certainly, I wish Billy well in his new job and I have an idea he will do well. The Yankees are the type of team that he should be able to have some success with."

O'Brien, who had a number of clashes with the volatile Martin during his tenure as Ranger manager, said, "I'd like to be a fly on the wall when him and Gabe Paul (Yankee general manager) have their first disagreement. Gabe can get as tough as anyone when he gets riled."

Infighter Jim Freguet said, "I'm glad to see him managing again because I was afraid he wouldn't get another chance when he got fired here."

Catcher Jim Sundberg said he thought Martin would stay out of baseball for a while. "But I'm sure the Yankee job is one he wanted."

Hot Bosox Threaten East Race Runaway

Tigers Drop Five-Game Series

BOSTON (AP) — There still are eight long weeks to go, but the Boston Red Sox are threatening to make a runaway of the American League East race.

"All we have to do is keep on going the way we are and we can forget about everyone else," Boston manager Darrell Johnson said Sunday after the Red Sox completed a five-game series sweep with a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

When you look and see a big right-handed hitter like Dwight Evans sitting in the dugout in this ball park, you realize what a tremendous bench they have.

"If we stay healthy and keep on winning, there'll be no looking over the shoulder at anyone," Johnson said. "However, we can't let up. We have two tough games with Baltimore and then a rough road trip, playing 15 games plus an exhibition at Cooperstown, N.Y."

The Red Sox made believers out of the Tigers and manager Ralph Houk. "They're something else," Houk said. "They're a tough ball club and will be tough to beat."

They have some kind of a bench. When you look and see a big right-handed hitter like Dwight Evans sitting in the dugout in this ball park, you realize what a tremendous bench they have.

Chris Taylor Is Improving

DAVENPORT, Iowa — Former Olympic wrestler Chris Taylor was in satisfactory condition today at Davenport's Mercy Hospital with blood poisoning and a deep abscess in his right calf.

Taylor, who wrestled for Dowagiac high school, was removed Saturday from the intensive care unit where he was taken Tuesday after collapsing prior to a wrestling match.

A spokesman for Taylor said his doctor thought the abscess may have been caused by a blow to the leg during an earlier match.

The 465-pound Taylor was the state prep heavyweight wrestling champ as a junior at Dowagiac and captured the National Junior College championship in his first year at Muskegon Community College.

Taylor was an undefeated two-time NCAA national heavyweight during his career at Iowa State University.

Taylor won a bronze medal at the 1972 Olympics. His only loss in six bouts was an opening defeat to eventual gold medalist Alexander Medved of Russia.

He has been undefeated in his 2½ years as a professional wrestler.

'Ailing' Reds Gain On Distant Dodgers Cubs Split DH With Cardinals

From Associated Press
The Cincinnati Reds, the team that has everything, leads the league in doctor bills, according to head cheerleader Sparky Anderson. So scratch one ally for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers, expected to repeat as National League West champions or at least battle for the division honors, now find themselves in a dogfight for second place with San Francisco as the Reds broke 15½ games in front after Sunday's 3-1 victory over the Dodgers.

"This team has everything," said Dave Concepcion, who chucked a seventh-inning homer that helped cushion the Reds' triumph, their second in a three-game series against the Dodgers. "The 1970 club had more power, but this club has more balance."

And Anderson, the Cincinnati manager, won't let anybody else's injuries detract from the rousing Reds record.

"All I hear about are injuries," Anderson said, referring to the Dodgers' rash of medical ailments. "But I guarantee you we're either even (with) or far ahead of any club with the number of injuries we've had."

Concepcion's homer, his first since May 21, and Joe Morgan's run-scoring double backed the combined seven-hit pitching of Pat Darcy and Rawley Eastwick.

Elsewhere in the NL, Philadelphia dumped Montreal 5-4, Atlanta beat San Diego 4-1, St. Louis beat Chicago 7-4 after dropping the first game 6-3, Pittsburgh took a pair from the New York Mets, winning 5-4 in 15 innings and 4-3, and San Francisco beat Houston 4-4 before losing 10-4.

Danny Ozark changed his mind, which had much to do with changing the outcome of the game. Tug McGraw wasn't supposed to pitch but he became the winning pitcher with two innings of hitless relief.

Tommie Hatton's pinch single in the 10th inning gave McGraw and the Phillies the victory.

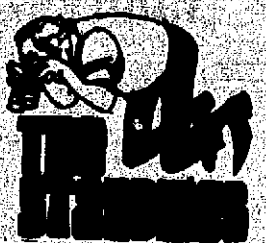

Atlanta inched closer to fourth-place San Diego after Carl Morton pitched a six-hitter and Darrell Evans hit a debreaking single. The Braves are now 2½ games behind the Padres.

Willie Davis drove in four runs with a home run and a double and Reggie Smith added a solo homer to lead St. Louis to a victory over the Cubs, giving the Cardinals a split of their Sunday doubleheader.

Two-run singles by Gene Hise and pitcher Tom Detore highlighted a six-run eighth inning that vaulted the Cubs to a triumph in the first game.

The Cardinals got a run in the second inning of the nightcap when Smith doubled and scored on a single by Ken Reitz. The Cubs went ahead with three runs in the fourth, Rob Sperring driving in two with a single off winner Ron Reed, 10-9.

Stansbury Upset In Net Tourney

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Mel Purcell of Murray, Ky., scored the first major upset Sunday in the United States Tennis Association Boy's 16-18 Championships.

Purcell eliminated the sixth-seeded Cary Stansbury of Tiburon, Calif., in the second round, 6-7, 7-4, 6-4.

"I came here to win," said the unranked Purcell, who will meet Ted Starna, of Hinsdale, Ill., Tuesday in the third round of the 16-and-under competition.

John McEnroe of Douglaston, N.Y., the favorite in the 16, advanced to the third round with a pair of easy victories. He defeated Dave Ballingall of Kalamazoo, 6-1, 6-1, and Thomas Holtman of Binghamton, N.Y., 6-4, 6-4.

In the 18-and-under class, top-seeded Howard Schoenfeld of Beverly Hills, Calif., was extended before defeating Eric Fromm, Glen Head, N.Y., 6-2, 6-7, 6-1.

Schoenfeld plays Greg Ewandick of Manassas, N.J., Monday in the second round.

Favored To Win Connie Mack Tournament Lakeshore Remains Undefeated

PORTAGE — Lakeshore Legion steamrolled another foe Sunday as it became the odds-on favorite to take the Connie Mack district being played at Portage Central.

Portage Larkin-Dale, the defending champ, fell to Lakeshore 12-3 as the Legion team kept its unbeaten record intact in district play. In other games Sunday, Paw Paw was eliminated by a 1-0 score by Portage Dick Loehr and Benton Heights edged the Kalamazoo Reds 7-5.

On Saturday in Wyoming, St. Joseph Legion suffered its second loss in the double-elimination tourney to Wyoming Del Ray 4-1.

This afternoon's schedule at Portage will have Benton Heights playing Dick Loehr in the early game and Lakeshore taking on Larkin-Dale after the first game. The winners will square off at 5 p.m. Lakeshore has a chance to take the title if it wins its first game.

Chuck Trapp's squad didn't waste any time jumping on three Larkin-Dale hurriers as Lakeshore scored seven runs in the first three innings. In the initial inning, Barry Adams and Kevin Middleton singled in runs while Steve Rembach doubled in another.

Winning pitcher Tim Farrow helped his own cause in the second by singling in a run. The Lakeshore hurler went three-for-four in the contest including a home run in the sixth inning.

In the third inning, Jeff Wiles singled in a run and Dale Burwell knocked in a pair of runs with a single.

John Bush was the only one able to touch Farrow with a big blow as he smacked a three-run home run in the sixth accounting for all of Larkin-Dale's runs. Just to add a little insult to injury, Lakeshore came back in its half of the sixth to score five more runs.

Benton Heights was cruising along with a 5-3 lead when the Red's tied the game up in the seventh, scoring on two wild pitches.

But Rick Thomas won his own game in the bottom of the inning as he smacked a two-run round tripper over the left field fence.

The Heights started off the scoring in the second as John Hamilton doubled in Bob Matner and Phil Arvetti tripled in Hamilton. Three more runs came across in the third as Les Arant singled one home and one of Bill French's draft choices, Mickey Ott, doubled in the other two tallies.

Ken Mangold and Joe Veezy got the only two hits Paw Paw could manage in its ball game. Dick Loehr's won it in the sixth as Rod Austin gave up his only extra base hit of the game, a double, that knocked in the run.

"This is one of the best games Rod has pitched all year," said Paw Paw manager Ed Wagonik.

Austin ended up striking out eight, walking four and giving up three hits.

St. Joseph outlast Del Ray 4-4 but could manage just one run in the sixth when Gerald Wolff singled, stole second and was driven home on Mike Collier's single. Wolff went two-for-four and Jay Claravino had a single and double for St. Joseph as it ends the season at 20-21.

One Hit Holds Key For Boston's Doyle, KC's Splittorff

FROM ASSOCIATED PRESS
For Danny Doyle, one hit was enough to make him the leader of the major leagues. For Paul Splittorff, one hit was enough to keep him from completely mastering the Oakland A's.

Doyle's first-inning, two-run homer gave him hits in 21 consecutive games, the longest streak in the majors this season, and helped propel Boston's red-hot Red Sox to a 6-4 victory over Detroit.

Cleveland's hit, a first-inning single, was enough to keep Splittorff from pitching a no-hitter. The Kansas City left-hander set down the final 24 batters he faced and the Royals rode John Mayberry's two-run homer and George Brett's three-run double to a 3-0 whitewash of the A's.

In Sunday's other American League action, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 4-1. California downed Texas 3-4 and, in a pair of doubleheaders, Minnesota swept Chicago 7-4 and 12-9. New York split with Cleveland, winning 12-1 and losing 3-2.

John Mayberry's two-run homer in the fourth inning and Brett's three-run double in the eighth gave Splittorff all the runs he needed. With the victory, the Royals locked within nine games of the A's in the West.

Jim Slaton pitched a threehitter, losing a no-hit bid on a seventh-inning single by Lee May, and Bobby Mitchell homered to help the Brewers beat Baltimore, who fell 9-4 games back of Boston in the East.

Mickey Rivers' tie-breaking single and Jerry Reins' sacrifice fly in the ninth gave the Angels their victory over Texas. California's Nolan Ryan allowed only two hits and struck out nine batters — including six in a row — during the first five innings, then reentered a groin muscle and left the game in the sixth.

Eric Soderholm's three-run homer highlighted a four-run uprising in the first inning that carried Minnesota to its first-game triumph, then rookie Dan Ford hit a home-run double to climax an eight-run third inning that gave the Twins their second doubleheader sweep in two days over the White Sox.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap when Carlos May doubled and Ken Henderson singled. Rod Carew's two-run single in the bottom of the first sent Minnesota into a 2-1 lead.

Carew also singled for the first run in the third, then he scored on Tony Oliva's single. Oliva later came in on Soderholm's single, which chased rookie Pete Vuckovich, 0-1, in his first major league start.

Steve Braun then hit a run-scoring single and Dan Osborn replaced reliever Rich Hinton. Jerry Terrell singled on Osborn's first pitch for the Twins' fifth run of the inning. After Lyman Bostock singled for his second hit of the inning to load the bases, Ford lined a double.

Chicago scored twice in the fifth, then erupted for five in the sixth in which two scored on Deron Johnson's double and two more on Nyls Nyrman's single.

In the first inning of the opener, Ford, Carew and Oliva singled before Soderholm unleashed his sixth homer.

Soderholm got his fourth RBI of the game with a grounder in the third and Ford belted his 19th homer of the year in the fifth. Jim Kaat, looking to become the major league's first 14-game winner, was charged with his sixth defeat.

Minnesota starter Vic Albary, 6-4, had a one-hit skunk going until the seventh when the White Sox scored two runs on singles by Bill Stein and Byron Downing, an error by Jerry Terrell and Rocky Dent's sacrifice fly.

Graig Nettles and Bobby Bonds drove in two runs apiece in a seven-run fifth inning that enabled the Yankees to breeze past Cleveland in their opener. Mike Carty's two-run homer in the eighth inning brought the Indians back in the nightcap and headed Billy Martin's first loss as the Yankees' manager.

Pearson 'Backs' Into Win, Petty Cries Foul At Finish

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — David Pearson backed into victory, says Richard Petty, just the same way Petty backed into topping $2 million in career winnings.

"Maybe I did back in," Pearson snapped, "just the way anyone else backed into victory circle when I last Daytona this year. Everything averages out in racing."

At long last was the finish in Sunday's 500-mile National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National stock car race at Pocono International Raceway, which Pearson won despite clouds of oil smoke pouring out of his Mercury.

Petty, about five seconds back, was an unhappy runnerup. But he cleared $10,000 Sunday to push over $2 million in winnings over his 18-year career.

"I didn't want to go over $2 million that way," Petty said. "Just like when I topped $1 million in 1971 with a win at Atlanta."

Petty charged that Pearson, who was black-flagged two laps from the finish, should have come into the pits. NASCAR rules give a driver three laps to respond to the call-in.

"Richard sure wouldn't have stopped," Pearson retorted. "As a matter of fact, this has happened before and Richard has kept right on going."

Pearson, who collected about $10,000 of the $102,000 purse, was pulling steadily away from Petty the last 20 laps after the leaders all stopped for fresh tires and fuel.

Behind Petty's Dodge were Buddy Baker in a Ford, Benny Parsons' Chevrolet, and four laps down, Richard Childress in a Chevrolet.

The race, which took about 2 1/2 hours to complete, was stopped for more than an hour by a thunderstorm.

Bobby Allison, who started on the pole position in a Matador, ran strong until lap 22 when engine troubles put him out of the race.

Cale Yarborough clipped the third-turn wall in the only wall banger of the hot, muggy afternoon. He was uninjured.

Pearson's winning speed of 111.178 miles an hour was a race record, but only because it was the first time this rain-plagued event has ever gone the distance.

In Terre Haute, Ind., Gary Bettenhausen swept in front on the final lap of the half-mile dirt track and edged Sheldon Kinser in the 48-lap U.S. Auto Club sprint car race.

It was Bettenhausen's seventh triumph at Terre Haute and earned him $1,100.

"He beat Kinser by about two inches," a USAC spokesman said. "It was just about a photo finish."

Carlos Reutemann of Argentina won the mechanically troubled German Grand Prix, getting his Brabham BT46 to victory by a little more than a minute over France's Jacques Laffite.

Only nine of the 25 starters finished the 14-lap, 100.3-mile race. Among those who were sidelined, must be punctured tires, included Americans Mark Donohue and Mario Andretti.

Hole-In-One Sparks Gene Littler To Westchester Title

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — It was a typical Gene Littler understatement, softly drawled, low-key, played-down. "It was," mused Gene after due consideration, "a pretty fair shot."

The "pretty fair shot" in question was a hole in one. It got him back in the golf tournament, set up a surging finish in brutal, 100-degree heat, allowed him to tie weary, willing Julius Boros and go on to a playoff victory in the rich Westchester Classic.

"I didn't have any thought of winning the golf tournament until I got the hole in one," he said. "I really didn't figure I had any chance at all."

But, propelled by his fifth competitive ace, Littler played his last five holes in four under par. It finished off a six-under-par 66 that gave him a 271 total for 72 holes over the hot, hilly, humid, haze-covered Westchester Country Club course.

Boros, the overweight 55-year-old delight of millions of middle-aged hackers throughout the world, was obviously suffering in the hottest weather the tour has seen this year. He came from five strokes off the pace with a final 65, once had the lead alone, had a chance to clinch it with a six-foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole — and missed it.

"I wanted to make that putt and close everybody else out," Boros said.

"I'd like to have won, but it's not life and death. Most people retire to play golf and fish. I do it for a living."

A victory would have made him the oldest winner the tour has ever produced.

The missed putt left him one in front. Littler had yet to play the 18th, a par five. He was short and right in two, pitched on to about five feet and made the birdie putt.

It sent them to the 15th to start a sudden death playoff. Both missed the fairway. Both missed the green. Littler was short. Boros' approach went through the green and up an embankment.

"He didn't have much of a shot," Gene said.

Littler chipped close. Boros ran his down the hill to the fringe, then three-putted for double bogey. Littler tapped in for par. Boros wiped the streaming sweat from his swarthy face, grinned a little, shook Littler's hand and ambled off.

Tom Weiskopf, who led by seven shots at the end of two rounds and by two at the end of three, went to a 71 and finished third at 272, one shot out of the playoff. A three-putt bogey on the 15th all but killed his chances.

Bruce Lietzke, fresh out of the rookie school, had a 67 and was fourth at 274. Pat Fitzsimons, the Los Angeles Open winner earlier in the season, was next at 278 after a 73.

In addition to the $50,000 first prize, Littler collected $8,000 for the hole in one. It came on an eight-iron shot that hit some 6-8 feet behind the hole and backed into the cup.

Littler, who staged a dramatic comeback from cancer surgery in 1972, donated the $8,000 check to the American Cancer Society in the name of Gary Sanders, a young tour player who died last week. Sanders was scheduled for cancer surgery today.

HAPPY FELLA: Gene Littler holds $50,000 check received Sunday after winning the Westchester Golf Classic in sudden death playoff with Julius Boros. Littler had a hole-in-one in the tourney at Harrison, N.Y. (AP Wirephoto)

Ashe, Nastase Battle Tonight

From Associated Press

Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe and 11th Nastase will battle tonight to see who will face Guillermo Vilas in the finals of the $100,000 Louisville Tennis Classic.

Vilas captured his rain-delayed match by easily dominating Jaime Filoli 6-3, 6-3 Saturday. The Ashe-Nastase semifinal was postponed because of a downpour and will be played at 7:30 p.m., EST.

The winner will meet Vilas for the title Sunday.

In the Western Tennis championships, seventh-seeded Tom Gorman earned his first major tournament victory in nearly two years as he rolled for a 7-6, 6-4, 6-4 win over unseeded Sherman Stewart. And Cynthia Doerner of Australia snipped Joanne Evert's 17-match winning streak to capture the M.A. America Tennis Classic in New York 6-1, 3-6, 6-1.

Two tournaments get underway this week. Jimmy Connors will be at North Conway, N.H., while the U.S. Clay Court championships will be held at Indianapolis, Ind.

Vilas, the top-seeded Argentinian, crushed Chile's Filoli in a match that was delayed several times by rain at Louisville. The defending champion, Vilas took a 2-1 lead in the first set before a 15-minute delay was caused by rain. Another downpour delayed the match for 25 minutes before Vilas ran off 12 straight points and won the first set.

The top player on the Grand Prix circuit, Vilas won the Dutch Open and the Washington International in his last two starts.

Gorman, who has been troubled by injuries the past eight months, came from a 1-3 deficit in the final set to overtake the unseeded Stewart, a tour veteran from Goose Creek, Tex. Stewart earlier had upset third-seeded Phil Dent and second-seeded Stan Smith.

Miss Doerner, who won the Atlantic City, N.J., stop on the five-tournament tour, handed Miss Evert, the younger sister of Chris Evert, her first loss since July 2.

While Connors, the defending men's champion, will not be on hand, the defending ladies' titlist, Chris Evert, will be when the U.S. Clay Court championships get underway. Miss Evert is seeded first while Julie Heldman is the No. 2 seed.

Vilas is the top seed among the men, while Ashe is seeded second, followed by 1974 semifinalists Manuel Orantes of Spain and Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

Battling Connors for the New Hampshire title will be Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Romania's Nastase, among others.

Tarpons, Michiana Increase Swim Leads

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Louisville Tarpons swim team and the Plantation swim team remained one and two in women's competition at the close of Saturday's Region Six Amateur Athletic Union Senior Competition with point totals of 201½ and 200.

AAU meet.

In the men's division, the Michiana Marlins from South Bend, Ind., increased their lead to 254 points, compared to 137 for second-place Indianapolis Riveria.

No overall team standings were computed during the two-day regional meet of 55 teams at the Plantation Country Club in Louisville.

school runners, Tom Ellapenmann and Pat Tobin, placed third and fifth respectively in the same race.

Davis Is 'Perfect Passer'

Chicago Winds Blanked In WFL Debut

Football League defenses, which had to worry about Anthony Davis as a runner and pass returner, will now have to worry about him as a passer.

"You remember I was three years at University of Southern California. Well, now I'm one for one here," Davis said after completing a key fourth-quarter pass in the Sun's 27-10 World Football League victory over Portland on Sunday.

Quarterback Mike Ernst threw touchdown passes of 65 and 55 yards for the Sun's first two scores and then ran 20 yards for a third touchdown pass to help seal the winning score in the 11th quarter.

Davis, who gained 102 yards on 23 carries before a crowd of 14,502, once again demonstrated his capacity for the big play.

With the Sun trailing, 15-14, in the fourth quarter, Ernst's 30-yard run put the ball on the Portland 27. Then on a second and eight on the Portland 25, Davis rolled to his left and cut loose with a southpaw pass to tight end Chuck Bradley, who went out of bounds at the nine.

Fullback Greg Herd went over the left side to score the winning touchdown on the next play.

"He was a quarterback in high school and he throws a very tight spiral," said Sun Coach Tom Fears, who put the option play into the Sun repertoire to take further advantage of Davis' talents.

In Saturday night games, Memphis edged Jacksonville 27-20, Philadelphia beat Hawaii 21-15, Birmingham blanked Chicago 10-0 and San Antonio trounced Shreveport 18-3.

Larry Csonka and Jim Kwik, former Miami Dolphins, made their WFL debuts a success. Csonka gained 90 yards and Kwik scored three times, including the game-winning touchdown from one yard out with 38 seconds to play.

Jacksonville rallied with a TD in the closing seconds but Alfred Haywood was stopped in an attempt to run for the extra point.

The attendance at Memphis was announced at 26,100.

Former Dallas Cowboy Calvin Hill gained 132 yards on 32 carries for the Hawaiians but Philadelphia, under new coach Willie Wood, won on the strength of two touchdown passes by King Corcoran. Bell quarterback Sonny Sixkiller threw a touchdown pass on the final play of the game but it was nullified by a holding penalty. A paid crowd of 2,732 turned out in Philadelphia.

Art Cantrell's one-yard plunge accounted for the game's only touchdown as the Birmingham defense bottled up Chicago. The Winds missed three field goals.

An estimated crowd of 20,000 was on hand in Birmingham.

John Walton threw for two second-period touchdowns, the plays covering 60 and 63 yards, as San Antonio made it two-for-two in regular-season play.

The crowd at San Antonio was listed at 10,411.

Total estimated attendance for the five WFL games was 70,686.

Old Tiger Hits Modern Players

Says Today's Salaries Are Out Of Line

BENTON HARBOR (AP) — Major league baseball players today get paid too much and the "game" aren't in shape," says 67-year-old Eddie Onslow, a former first baseman with the Detroit Tigers.

"I also believe there were more good hitters and more speed when he played ball in the second and third decades of the century."

Onslow, who lives in Scio, Ohio, is one of five survivors of the 1912 Tiger team. No survivors from teams before that time have been found in a search by the American League club for the oldest living Tiger.

Frank Carisch, 88, of San Gabriel, Calif., is the oldest extant located. He played on the 1910 team.

The other four from the 1912 team known to be living are Charlie Deal, 85, of Pasadena, Calif., a third baseman; Ollie O'Brien, 84, of Reno, Nev., a shortstop; Alen Kuzma, 80, a pitcher from Phoenix; and Ollie Wheatley, 82, a pitcher from Tulsa, Okla.

"I made about $300 a month," Onslow said in a telephone interview. "That's about what most rookies got."

"The today's huge salaries he said, "I think the end of it's gonna be they're gonna sell 'em out and the great game of baseball is gonna slip, slip, slip. You can't fool the public all the time. The public will short change you sooner or later. Somebody's wrong somewhere. It's getting too far out of line."

Onslow, who began his pro career in 1911 with Lansing of the Western Michigan League, said that pitchers "in my day" were in and pitched nine innings. They didn't have a (right) pitcher like now who runs in when somebody starts hitting.

"The ballplayers were in condition. Now it's the funniest thing I ever saw. It takes five or six pitchers to finish a ballgame. Something's wrong. They aren't in shape to finish a ballgame."

Onslow played in 25 games for Detroit in 1912, batting .227 with 13 runs batted in. In 17 games the next season he hit .253.

"I think they had more speed in those days," he said. "And they were real hitters. Now there's maybe one good hitter on a ballclub. The regulars in those days would all be around."

Ken's Wins Tournament

Ken's Foodtown of Benton Harbor edged Bertuca Bonding of St. Joseph, 3-2, Sunday to win the First Annual Watervliet clay pitch softball tournament.

Earl Deben pitched Ken's to the victory in the championship game.

Stacy Atkins collected seven hits in the tournament to pace Ken's offensive attack. Drew Bush added five hits including two home runs.

Ken's coach was the star of the tournament for Bertuca. Deben slammed out 10 hits including nine home runs in six games. Ben Lange added 20 hits for the second place team.

George Connor of Benton Harbor was third in the tournament, while Lelo MacGregor of St. Joseph finished fourth.

270-200. You had to hit to stay up there."

From 1914 to the end of his playing days in 1929 Onslow spent almost all his time in the Triple A International League with Providence, Toronto, Rochester and Baltimore. In those 16 seasons he was above the .200 mark 14 times, with a high of .246 for Baltimore in 1920 when the left-handed hitter was 35 years old.

Onslow played in two games for Cleveland of the AL in 1918 and nine for Washington of the AL in 1927.

He stole 400 bases in his pro career.

Why, with all his impressive statistics, didn't he play longer in the majors?

"I could never tell," he said. "It was a little different. They (major league teams) owned ballclubs all over the country. They sent us here and left us there. They were trying to win pennants (at their farms)."

He said Detroit dropped its Providence farm club and sold him to Toronto in 1916.

"They sent a lot of ballplayers there," Onslow said. "I was the only one they got money for."

He has no idea who first spotted him at Lansing to give him the shot at the majors.

"I was as surprised as could be when they said I was going over there (Detroit)," he said.

Among his Tiger teammates were the legendary Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, Davy Jones, Dottie Bush, George Mullin and George "Hooks" Daus. Current Tiger hurler Mickey Lolich is approaching Daus' club victory record of 223.

"He was a wonderful, fine fellow," Onslow said of Daus. "He had plenty of stuff. He was fast and had a good curve. He had the temperament to be a good pitcher and he had a winning attitude."

"Those were wonderful years," he recalled. "It was great to see Cobb. I can remember the way he used to play. They were a wonderful bunch of men — the finest in the country. You couldn't beat them anywhere."

Onslow said he didn't have any contact with his former teammates after he retired except for a few letters from Cobb who "was a good friend of mine."

The press was always good, he said, and the fans, "wanted to see you win. A ballplayer in my time had the instinct of wanting to be a winner. I don't think you've got that in ballplayers today. I don't know what it is."

Onslow said he has "a warm spot" for the Tigers and follows them on radio and in the newspapers.

Onslow managed in the minors for seven years, the last in 1930 with Bradford of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

"I couldn't put up with that," he said. "That was too tough a job."

Henley Captures Big Hydroplane Victory

SEATTLE (AP) — George Henley, driver of the unlimited hydroplane, Pay 'n Pak, has a simple explanation for his victory in Sunday's Seafair Regatta.

"Every time I push the starter button, the boat runs."

That's what the grinning, low-keyed, 38-year-old driver said after winning two firsts and one second in three heats of racing to capture the top prize.

It was more than many other drivers could say about their boats Sunday.

On balance, it was considered a no-hum day, with mechanical problems taking a heavy toll of the big boats. In all preliminary heats Sunday, only eight boats finished their events out of a possible 18.

Most of the excitement came after the race in a hassle involving Bill Muncey, the veteran driver of the Atlas Van Lines, and Bob Fendler, the owner of the Lincoln Thrift boat.

But broken propellers, blown superchargers, other breakdowns and the second Seattle fire in as many years aboard the Miss U.S. hydro left four of the nine boats that qualified for Sunday's race without a single point. And all a boat had to do to earn a point was finish a heat.

"I don't have a thing to worry about," Henley said in praise of the crew that maintains the Seattle-based hydro and its Rolls Royce 12-piston aircraft engines.

The Weisfield's, piloted by Billy Schumacher, was second for the day with two firsts and a third for 1,025 points compared with Henley's 1,100.

The Lincoln Thrift, whose driver Milner Irvin somehow managed to finish the final heat despite suffering injuries to both eyes in the opening turn, finished third for the day with 827.

Atlas Van Lines, jockeyed by Bill Muncey, was fourth with 525 and the Miss Vernor's, driven by Bob Miller, was fifth with 400.

The victory gave the Pak 6,964 points in the national standings. Weisfield's is second with 6,113 and Lincoln Thrift is third with 6,429.

Irvin, 35, of Miami, will be hospitalized for "a few days," his doctor said Sunday. He said Irvin suffered injuries to both eyes and was bleeding within the eyes.

"I don't think there's a risk of permanent damage," the doctor, who asked not to be named, said.

Irvin, in a phone interview from the hospital, said he was coming out of the first turn of the final heat when "I had no place to go but through Muncey's rooster tail" spray. "It was like being hit in the face with a soaking wet towel thrown at you at 150 miles per hour."

The force knocked the face protector off Irvin's helmet and knocked him onto the deck of the boat. But he later restarted and finished the race — then was rushed to a hospital.

Original Met Is Star Now

NEW YORK (AP) — After 14 years in the big leagues, most baseball players think about retirement. Not Ed Kranepool. He's thinking about 14 more.

A New York Mets 30-year-old veteran, who suddenly finds himself a hitting star with an aggressive, new batting style.

"Last year, he started to be a smarter hitter," says New York Manager Yogi Berra. "Now he's hitting the ball where it's pitched. Before, he used to dive after the ball and pop up. Now, he's more selective."

As a result, Kranepool—the only original member of the expansionist Mets—is batting .352 and aiming for higher goals.

"I'm not surprised at my performance," says Kranepool, an $85,000 bonus baby in 1962. "I always had confidence in myself—even when I was forced to go back to the minor leagues for a while. I'm just a little more aggressive now. Pressure doesn't bother me. I enjoy hitting with men on base. I'm not going to strike out too often."

Kranepool, who only hit .300 one time in his major league career—last season when he came to bat only 217 times—has established himself as one of the most feared hitters in the National League.

He came into this season with a modest .254 lifetime batting average.

"I really feel as if I've had two careers with the Mets—before 1969 and after 1969," Kranepool says. "When I first started out with New York, we'd lose 100 games a year. Baseball was no fun then—even if you had a good day individually. Now, it's great being with a team that wins. And the way I'm hitting, well, it's even greater."

Kranepool is a product of James Monroe High School in the Bronx, a school that produced such famous baseball names as slugger Hank Greenberg and Charlie Fox, the long-time San Francisco manager. He signed as a 17-year-old wonder boy with the brand-new Mets' organization, touted as a can't-miss star. But he never lived up to his press clippings—at least not until this year.

"I wasn't ready for the big leagues," he admits, "and pitchers took advantage of me. Now I'm starting to catch up with them."

Funeral Set Today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Funeral services were to be held today for Jack Fried, sports writer and editor for the Philadelphia Bulletin for more than 50 years.

Robey Enjoying 'Horsing Around'

LEXINGTON, KY. (AP) — One of the "big horses" of Kentucky's basketball team, Rick Robey, is spending the summer being dwarfed by the real big horses of the equine world.

"Before I came to Kentucky, I had never been around horses, but I'm starting to take a liking to it," said the 6-foot-11 center from New Orleans who was a starter on the Wildcats last year as a freshman.

Robey, who recently slimmed from 244 pounds to 228, has been working this summer at Claiborne Farm, home of the famed Secretariat, at nearby Paris, Ky. This week he has been at Keeneland to help show Claiborne yearlings that were sold at Tuesday night's final session of the annual sale.

"This summer they're allowing me to show a few horses and I find it a real interesting job," Robey said. Last year, his first around horses, "I just worked with the yearlings on the farm."

Seth Hancock, who manages Claiborne for his mother, noted dryly, "We only let him show the tall horses."

Robey's day starts at 4:30 a.m., and he's at work shortly before 6, he said. For the first 2½ hours, he walks horses—first the colts and then the fillies—to exercise them.

"For the rest of the day, I've got barn No. 27 with 10 horses in it and I do everything for them—washing, cleaning stalls, brushing them, letting them out and bringing them in," he said.

He's off duty at 4 p.m., "but three nights a week I lift weights until about 7:30 and three other nights we play pickup basketball games, so I'm pretty tired up," he said.

Robey, who averaged 10.4 points and 6.9 rebounds a game last season for NCAA runnerup Kentucky, thinks he has a good chance to play in next fall's Pan-American Games.

At tryouts this summer in Salt Lake City, he said, "They invited 40 players and 30 more showed up; at their own expense." Robey was one of the 18 invited for further tryouts.

"I feel pretty safe, but I'll have to be in good shape" when the next round of eliminations Sept. 14 pares the team down to the required 12, he said. "It could be a real exciting month and a half for me if I make the team."

Off the court, Robey enjoys being recognized as a basketball player, yet also wants a private life for himself.

"You're nothing special just because you play college ball," he said. "I don't just play basketball and come to work. I try to be just like everybody else."

That's difficult in Kentucky when you're 6-11 and touted as a future superstar.

"Of course, when you go someplace someone is going to notice you. For that reason, you've got to watch what you do and keep yourself more in line than a person who doesn't play basketball," he said.

The future? "Anybody who plays college ball looks for the pro contract," Robey said. "And maybe someday, he'll get into the thoroughbred business—if I'm ever rich enough."

Three No-Hitters In Ruth Tournament

Doug Thompson of Lakeshore lost a no-hitter to Bridgman by a 1-0 score in one of the five first round games played Sunday in the North Lincoln Babe Ruth tournament at Eaton Park.

Thompson struck out 10 but his pitching opponent, Jeff Gallup, also hurled a no-hitter, striking out 11. Bridgman scored its only run when Tim Barinka walked, stole second, was bunted to third and scored on an infield error.

Scott Dennison pitched the third no-hitter of the day as his North Lincoln team beat Watervliet 3-0. Dennison helped his own cause with two hits.

Jim Martin went three-for-three as St. Joseph's downed Berrien Springs 6-3. Mark Birt-man was the winning pitcher. Scott Porter had a single and double and Benny Chadwick was tagged with the loss.

Randy DeWeerd got the win and Dave Littlejohn had two hits as Marcellus beat Benton Heights 5-4. Lamont Williams, Louis Evans and losing pitcher Randy Powell each had two hits.

Al Ward hurled an two-hitter as Buchanan trounced Gobles 16-1. John Speckien and Jeff Butler had doubles and Scott Tobler and John Hall went two-for-three for the winners. Eddie Koehn was tagged with the loss.

Tonight Berrien Springs will take on Gobles at 6 p.m. and Dowagiac plays Decatur at 8:30 p.m.

McNeil To Play

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Larry McNeil of the Kansas City Kings has accepted an invitation to play in the 17th annual Maurice Stokes Memorial Basketball Classic at Katscher's Country Club Aug. 17.

McNeil was named most valuable player in last year's Stokes game.

"I smoke about 2 packs a day and I get a lot of pleasure out of every cigarette. But I've cut down on 'tar' and nicotine without giving up what I like about smoking."

"I do it on what I call 'The Doral Diet'. Doral gives me the taste I want from a cigarette. But compared to my old brand, each Doral I smoke is 5 milligrams lower in 'tar'. Figure it out. That's a difference of 100 milligrams less 'tar'.

MAYOR'S AWARD WINNER: Fienterex Lakeshore Skating center won mayor's award in Coloma Gladiolus festival parade Saturday. It was among 40 units in parade.

Indiana Float Wins Twice At Coloma

COLOMA — An estimated 5,000 persons watched the annual Coloma Gladiolus festival parade here Saturday despite heavy rain.

The parade was one of the highlights of the three-day festival.

Burlesque Flops

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An effort to bring back old-fashioned burlesque to Los Angeles has flopped, but Harold Minsky says he'll keep the show on the road elsewhere.

A water ski show closed out the salute to the gladiolus yesterday.

The top two awards, the president's award and sweepstakes award went to the LaPorte County Farm Bureau Inc. for its float entry "History of America."

The Mill Creek, Ind., group has previously entered the float in the LaPorte July 4 celebration, Michigan City, Ind., Summer Festival and New Buffalo Pioneer Days.

Other winners were United Pentecostal church of Portage, Mich., queen's award; Lakeshore Skating Center, mayor's trophy; Casadian Girls Drill team of Jackson, Mich., judges' trophy; Saladin Clown unit, originality trophy; Lori Messal beauty trophy; Lessons Emerald Sparks' baton unit, Kalamazoo, marching unit.

DOUBLE WINNER: LaPorte County Farm Bureau Inc. float took both president award and sweepstakes award in Coloma Gladiolus festival parade Saturday.

Some 5,000 spectators viewed parade despite heavy rain.

Clyde and Becky Dekelbooker pony hitch and George Fisher, Coloma, best horse.

Judges for the festival parade were Mike Devine, head of law enforcement training at Lake Michigan college; David Stockman, and Mrs. Jenny Schmidt, horse trainer.

Some 40 units took part in parade, according to Rocco Bertuca, parade chairman.

FBI To Investigate Hoffa Disappearance

threat was sent to the family, either to Mrs. Crancer, or her brother, Detroit attorney James P. Hoffa.

One FBI source said a threatening phone call to the younger Hoffa came in on his unlisted phone. Another source said two notes were sent, reading: "You saw what happened to him. You're next."

In fact, no one seems to know what happened to Hoffa. Police said today they still have no solid evidence he was kidnapped or murdered. Authorities said there are no new clues.

Local police said they received an anonymous phone call from someone who said he "had" Hoffa and demanded $500 ransom. Another caller asked $50,000. "We're getting a lot of calls from screwballs," a police officer said.

Mrs. Crancer said her family is "very grateful" the FBI is now directing the investigation.

"They have resources the local people couldn't possibly have. We certainly appreciate everything the local police have done, but now you need the federal government."

Mrs. Crancer and her brother both phoned Kelley and Atty. Gen. Edward Levi in Washington over the weekend to urge that the FBI take over the search for Hoffa.

"You used 2,000 agents to try to put my father into jail, and up to now you have used only two agents to try to find him," Mrs. Crancer reportedly told Kelley.

In the 1960s, Senate investigators worked to get evidence on James Riddle Hoffa, then the most powerful labor boss in the nation and an acquaintance of many crime figures.

With more than two-dozen FBI agents carrying out the probe, it succeeded. Hoffa was sentenced to 13 years in prison for mail fraud and jury tampering.

New Jersey authorities Sunday questioned former union vice president Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, reportedly one of three men Hoffa said he was going to meet before he disappeared Wednesday.

Hoffa told his wife he was to have met Detroit Mafia kingpin Anthony Giacalone, and he told two employees at a firm where he has a business interest the names of two others. The employees recalled the names over the weekend after they were hypnotized by a psychiatrist.

It was not known what Provenzano told police Sunday. A newspaper quoted him as saying he hadn't been in Michigan for a decade, but a Detroit police source said "Tony Pro" was in Detroit the day Hoffa disappeared. FBI officials would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Andrews Graduates Will Hear Brazilian

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Andrews university here will graduate some 230 students during summer commencement exercises Sunday, Aug. 10, in Pioneer Memorial church on the AU campus.

Seats in the church will be reserved until 8:30 a.m. for guests of graduates. Others may view the ceremonies by closed-circuit television in church classrooms.

The commencement address, "Access to Education," will be given by Mrs. Eurides Brito da Silva, who has been appointed by the president of Brazil to serve on that nation's top educational body, the federal board of education.

The graduation weekend will begin with a consecration service in the church on Friday, 8 p.m. with Dr. Donald G. Jacobson, seminary associate professor of evangelism, speaking on "A Mind Like His."

The president of the Seventh-day Adventist world organization, Robert H. Pierson, will give the baccalaureate sermon during church services in Pioneer Memorial church Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m. Pierson was reelected president this month at the Adventist world congress in Vienna. He has held the position since 1968.

Pierson, 64, is a veteran missionary and author of over a dozen books. He holds an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Andrews.

Mrs. da Silva, the commencement speaker, first rose to national prominence in Brazil when in 1960 she became director of the office of secondary education in the department of education and culture.

She was named director of the office of elementary education in 1970, and before she assumed her present position in 1974, she had initiated an entire reordering of Brazil's elementary education system.

The degrees will be conferred on Sunday by Dr. Joseph Smeel, AU vice president for academic affairs.

About 74 students will be graduated from the college of technology and the college of arts and sciences, and 100 from the university and the school of graduate studies.

Spa's Visitors Arrived Early

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Spanish explorer Hernando De Soto gave Hot Springs its start as the so-called "spa of the world," according to the state Parks, Recreation and Tourism Department.

De Soto and his party were the first visitors to bathe in Hot Springs' thermal waters — 49 years after Columbus discovered America.

Mississippi Goes To Polls

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi Democrats, less than a decade away from the civil rights strife of the mid-1960s, vote in a gubernatorial primary Tuesday. It is their first such primary without an avowed segregationist on the ticket. Some 700,000 of an estimated 1.1 million eligible voters are expected to cast ballots for offices from governor to constable. The state's constitution does not allow Gov. Bill Waller to succeed himself for another four-year term, and Lt. Gov. William Winter, 52, is considered the heavy favorite among the six Democratic gubernatorial contenders.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Continue Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, still burdened by inflation worries, pulled back again today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down about a point, and losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers reported continuing concern over rising food prices.

An added source of uneasiness came in a periodic survey of corporate purchasing executives who reported that the cost of production materials increased last month for the first time since late last year.

Today's early prices included:

- Teleprompter, down 1/4 at 57 1/2.
- Mobil Oil, off 1/4 at 43 1/4.
- Supermarket General, unchanged at 24.
- American Telephone & Telegraph, off 1/4 at 48 1/4.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.01 to 826.50 to wind up the week with a 7.50 loss.

Declines outnumbered gains by about a 2-1 margin on the Big Board as trading volume sagged to 13.32 million shares, its lightest since the year.

The NYSE's composite index was off .42 at 47.10.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .73 to 80.23.

Stevensville Woman's Leg Broken

Eunice Hughes of Stevensville, a saleswoman for radio station WSMJ, received a fractured leg when bumped by a golf cart by another WSMJ staffer last Friday.

The accident occurred in a brief rainstorm during the Western Amateur tournament at Point O' Woods country club.

Emergency ambulance attendants said Betty Dee was the driver of the golf cart. Rampart transported Mrs. Hughes to Memorial hospital, where she was treated and released.

During the five-day tournament, several other people were reported struck by golf balls off the clubs of tourney players. No serious injuries were reported.

Somebody Didn't Like The Food?

NILES — Niles township police said a bottle containing a suspected flammable liquid and a burning stick was tossed against an outside back wall of a restaurant here last night but caused no damage or injuries.

Police said the bottle did not break and was found lying next to the building by employees of Wright's Drive-In restaurant, 3150 South 11th street, who went to investigate after hearing a noise. The bottle was found about 11:15 p.m.

According to police, employees said two white men who were apparently disaffected with service or food they had received had left the building shortly before the bottle was found. Police said they were not sure of any connection between the men and the suspected attempted fire bombing.

tients and need your help to transport them to treatment centers in Kalamazoo, South Bend and other cities.

This is where the American Cancer Society corps of volunteer drivers enters the picture. This is a group of dedicated people, who recognize the needs of their fellowman and unselfishly give their time. You might ask, why these patients cannot provide their own transportation. It's very simple. Some of them don't have any families, or their children all work, or their wife doesn't like to drive distances, or the husband cannot close his business to drive his wife every day, or they're on a pension and their car just won't make all those trips. Many of them wish to drive themselves, and some do it first, but the treatments make them so tired they would be a safety risk on our highways. These are not invalids or people on stretchers, but people who walk in and out, receiving treatments as out patients. These are men and women who are alert and have very interesting lives to share, but they need help.

They need your help, now! Our list of volunteer drivers is dwindling and needs to be enlarged. A volunteer driver does not "sign his or her life away"! They may drive as often as once a week, or as little as once a month. They can say "No, I'm sorry, I can't this time, but maybe next time," whenever they wish.

This function of the Cancer Society cannot be effective, unless we have the support and assistance of men and women, like you, who are truly concerned about others around them. Please give this appeal some careful consideration. We really do need you!

You may call your local American Cancer Society office for further information, or to volunteer, at 963-7305. All volunteer drivers receive reimbursement for each trip they make.

Remember, someone does truly need you! The rewards are great.

OFFICIALS SHOULD WORK FOR CITY NEEDS

The time has come, the Walrus said, to think of many things. This seemingly nonsensical line from the Lewis Carroll poem surprisingly enough applies quite aptly to the forthcoming city election in Benton Harbor.

When we citizens of Benton Harbor go to the polls Aug. 5th it should be foremost in our minds that our votes and our votes alone can determine the course our city will take. This is not a time for party politicking, nor is it a time to cleave to personal loyalties.

As Benton Harbor flounders in the throes of economic crisis and the crime rate (which is often times a direct result of the high rate of unemployment) continues to soar it is obvious that we are in need of capable city officials with revitalizing the city in mind. Be these people Democrats, Republicans, independents, or whatever so long as they have the interest of the city at heart.

Rather than concern ourselves with parties we should strive toward electing people on the strength of their skills and abilities in the areas of revenue raising and creation and implementation of jobs for the people. As businesses and people with the power to reconstruct a near dead city continue to desert us we would do well to carefully and analytically assess the candidates we vote for in the Aug. 5th primary.

A "Clean Slate" sounds intriguing and surely "Common Sense" candidates are desirable, but let us be sure that whoever we vote for will work fervently for the needs and concerns of the city.

HAPPY APPLE PLAYERS ARE CONGRATULATED

Congratulations! and thank you to the Happy Apple Players for their lively and enjoyable presentation of "Alone in the Wilderness" this past week-end at the Graham high school. What a wonderful opportunity this was for parents to attend and for the players to receive the interest of their community in the performing arts and thereby provide good, wholesome entertainment.

entertainment. The young and "young-at-heart" left with a feeling of exhilaration and joy.

James Morlock did a fantastic job of designing, direction and choreography. The Happy Apple Players are definitely a happy, entertaining group who give their "all" to a performance.

I do feel it is essential that the members of the community enthusiastically support and attend local performances so more presentations will be available and drawn into a participating and appreciative community.

Farm Cooperatives A 'Potent Force' In Agriculture

By JIM KEEGSTRA
Associated Press Writer
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Efficient and active farm cooperatives built upon a solid base of family farms will keep American agriculture strong and growing, according to the dean of Michigan State University's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"To survive and be of service, cooperatives have two legs upon which to stand — business principles and philosophic principles. Both are important," Lawrence Boger told the 47th National Institute on Cooperative Education meeting at MSU.

"Today, farmer cooperatives are a potent force in American agriculture," Boger said. "Their strength continues to expand as their numbers and family membership declines."

Cooperatives are challenged today by the lack of government-held commodity supplies and a $12 billion foreign trade farm surplus, Boger said.

This has been caused by poor crop conditions and protein supplement shortages in 1973, two devaluations of the dollar, large grain sales to Russia and the formation of protected trading regions, he said.

"These forces combine to produce the top farm problem of the day — how to stabilize farm prices at reasonable levels, preserve our favorable balance of trade and still keep the government from getting back into the storage business," Boger said.

Solutions are partly the responsibility of cooperatives, Boger said. They can perform the market function of storage to stabilize both prices and returns to farmers.

To keep the whole food production and consumption system going, there must be not only money returns but also other rewards, Boger said.

"The economic status of others has improved," he said. But something else has improved too, which has added stature to the farming business — human dignity. "Let anything destroy the dignity or the dollar rewards for those who till, and much of America will be destroyed," he said.

The annual conference Boger spoke at was sponsored by the American Institute of Cooperation. More than 2,500 farm leaders, teachers, government representatives, farmers and youths attended the four-day meet at the end of July. In addition to the MSU dean, they heard speakers who said that consumers and government will keep pressuring cooperatives as long as retail prices rise; that women must become active and share responsibility for co-op management; that shoppers are buying less specialty and highly processed foods; and that farmers need to improve the image urban residents hold of them.

Surgeons Named In $55,000 Lawsuit

A Cass county woman who claims two of her toes now "protrude vertically" since she underwent foot surgery, filed suit in Berrien circuit court seeking $55,000 damages.

The plaintiffs, Nancy and Richard Stark, seek the damages from Dr. LaVerne W. Blank, a Niles podiatrist and foot surgeon, and Dr. Donald H. Grow, a Benton Harbor osteopathic surgeon.

The suit claims Dr. Blank performed foot surgery on Mrs. Stark in June, 1973, and that Grow was the attending physician while she was hospitalized. The Starks contend that bandages were removed six to eight weeks after the surgery, and Mrs. Stark noticed the second toe on each foot protruded upward.

They contend the condition became worse "until at the present they (the two toes) protrude vertically." The suit claims the doctors were negligent in treatment and surgery.

In another circuit court suit, Andrews university sued Allied Education council, based in Galien, for $114,772 for alleged non-payment of bills.

The university claims it has a business division called University Printers which between October, 1974, and June, 1975, printed books, catalogs, brochures, games, and envelopes for Allied Education council. The suit contends $114,772 is due for the printing.
